Straightforward Report

Tass's report on Mr. Nixon's speech was straightforward by Soviet standards. It did not give details of the mining and blockade of North Vietnam's harbors, such as the three-day grace period Mr. Nixon offered to ships in these ports, and it made no mention of the presence of Soviet ships in Haiphong.

Tass recounted fully the President's new offer to withdraw all U.S. troops in four months if an internationally supervised ceasefire is established and all American prisoners are released

"Mr. Nixon admitted that most Americans favor [peace] talks," Tass reported, "They [most Americans] believe, the President said, that to bring the war to an end the United States must pull out of Vietnam and remova the threat to the remaining American forces by simply withdrawing

American planes began today a massive bombing and mine-lay-ing campaign aimed at quarantining North Vietnam's ports and cutting its road and rail trans-

About 200 Navy, Air Force, and Marine fighter-bombers ranged over North Vietnam, from the capital of Hanoi sonthward to the Demilitarized Zone. The Navy planes dropped mines, set to arm themselves at 1100 GMT Thursday (6 p.m. Saigon time), at the entrances to the principal North Vietnamese ports, according to the U.S. command.

The air operations were chal-lenged by North Vietnamese MiGs and one enemy plane was shot down, the U.S. command said, but it released no further details. The mining began at 0100 GMT today (9 a.m. Saigon time) as President Nixon was making his speech announcing the new steps.

The U.S. command said that before the new campaign began today, its planes had made mora than 1,000 strikes in North Vietnam between 6 p.m. last Wednesday and 5 p.m. yesterday. Tha command gave no details on the mining operations, citing reasons of security.

But the level of bombing in North Vietnam now appears to be roughly equal to what it was at the height of the air war in 1967

In addition to the bombing, 2 force of Navy destroyers and cruisers has placed under fire North Vietnamese coastal defense sites, bridges, ammunition storage areas and naval installations.

[The U.S. command said the initial phases of the mining operation have been successfully accomplished" and Navy planes dropping them had returned safe-

But Calls It Not Un acceptable

WASHINGTON, May 9 (Reuters).—White House adviser Henry Kissinger said today that President Nixon's order to mine North Vietnamese ports was a risk to U.S. relations with the Soviet Union and China, but old not involve an unacceptable risk.

In a radio and TV broadcast, Precident Nixon announced last night that he had ordered the mining of the harbors to choke off supplies to Communist troops fighting in South Vietnam. He said that American and South Vietnamese naval and air forces also will attempt to block traffic in North Vietnamese coastal and internal waters and to cut raul and other supply lines. There are two rail lines carrying supplies to Hanoi from China, dent had decided to try to stop the supply of Boviet weapons to Hanoi and would go ahead with the planned summit with Mr. Nixon beginning May 22.

He stated flatly that the President had rejected a theory that the North Vietnamese offensive in the South was planned and conceived by the Russians as a deliberate attempt to humiliate the United States as Mr. Nixon prepared for the Moscow summit

Word in Day or Two Mr. Kissinger said the White House had received no indication from the Soviet Union as to whether the summit would go ahead or be called off, and he thought it would be a day or two before any information was received here. "But we are proceeding with summit preparations and we see, at this moment, no reason to postpone the summit," he declar-"We recognize the decisions we have taken present some difficulties for the Soviet leaders, but we also believe that the situation has presented massive difficulties for us," he said. He said Mr. Nixon had taken very painful and difficult decisions, but he believed that no other honorable alternative was available to him. The peace talks in Paris had reached the point, he said, where the Communists were insisting on arrangements that would in effect install a Communist administration in Saigon before an actual settlement was worked out.

Pain and Reluctance With the Communists refusing even to discuss U.S. proposals for political settlement and with the offensive in full swing in the South, the President enormous pain and great reluctance" was forced to order the mining of North Vietnamese ports and the interdiction of Soviet war supplies reaching Hanoi, Mr. Kissinger said.

The United States and the Soviet Union had been engaged for two years on negotiations leading to the planned summit and it was the President's hope that a new relationship benefit to all mankind could be worked out, he added.

But no country could be oblivious to the impact of actions taken by another country, such as tha massive shipment of heavy weapons the Soviet (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

Dead Men Win Italy Campaign

AOSTA, Italy, May 9 (Reuters .- Two dead men were elected last night in Italy's general elections.

The two men. Oresto Marcoz and Germano Ollietti, were candidates for the two houses of the Italian parliament. But late last month they were killed in a road crash and there was no way in Italy's electoral machinery to withdraw their names.

So they were duly elected today. It means that the Val d'Aosta region will remain without representatives unless it is decided to hold the election there again.

The future premier-designate will have to explore his chances for obtaining the confidence votes in the Chamber and Senate that a government needs for constitutional functioning.

Coalition Ecvival

One way to secure a majority would be the revival of the center-left coalition that governed the nation during most of the last 10 years. It collapsed five months ago, mainly because the Socialists, who were allies of the Christian Democrats in the cabinet, insisted on strengthening their cooperation with the Communists, who had been barred from government since 1947.

Other partners in the center-left alliance were the Social Democrats and the Republicans. Christian Democratic leaders repeatedly requested during their party's campaign that the Socialists give up any idea of closer with the Communist party if they wanted to return to gov-

Decision Must Wait

A further complication stems from the fact that both the Christian Democratic and Socialist parties are due to hold national conventions next autumn and that no basic policy decision is likely to be made by either group before then.

The prospects point, therefore, toward what Italians call a "summer government," a caretaker administration that runs Italy during the vacation period while the politicians make up their minds. The complete election returns were announced after 2 p.m. today, more than 24 hours after the polls closed yesterday. Some Italian newspapers said that the agonizing slowness of the votecounting reflected the torpor of tion, called this a "completely normal procedure" and said the whole dispute would turn out to be "a tempest in a teapot."

An authoritative Communist source confirmed this description. He reported that Ambassador Falin's original dispatch containing the compromise resolution had been taken amiss initially in the Soviet Foreign Ministry "probably as a result of the Viet-nam furor."

When the Soviet envoy requested further information he was told that the compromise resolution was fundamentally acceptable. It is understood that Ambassador Falin will tell this to Mr. Barzel early tomorrow morning, opening the doors for the ratification debate and assuring a comfortable majority for the resolution and the treaties when they are presented to the Bun-

Drafting of the bipartisan resolution had taken hundreds of hours of often agonizing conferences during the last 10 days. They involved all four parties in the Bundestag-two from the coalltion and two forming the opposition-as well as the Soviet Embassy and envoys of the United States, Britain and France.

The seemingly final draft was completed with the participation and conditional approval of Ambassador Falin in a two-hour meeting that lasted through noontime at Mr. Brandt's residence.

The text was distributed to the press at 5 p.m. accompanied by confident predictions in both government and opposition camps that the treaties would get overwhelming support in the vote tomorrow. A few minutes later the word came from Moscow turning everything upside down.

He was playing a key role again today and tonight, albeit a curious one, for he had been called in by the opposition specifically to give Moscow's blessing to the bipartisan Bundestag resolution—something unprecedented in parliamentary practice here. He was also called on to guarantee that his government would take note of the resolution in a form satisfactory to the opposition.

[The mining of approaches to the port of Haiphong from the air centered on a narrow channel called the Canal Maritime, which was dredged into the harbor. It is about a mile long, about 500 yards wide and has a depth of about 20 feet. Other ports on the target list included Hon Gai, Cam

Pha. Quang Khe and Dong Hol. [Hanoi's Vietnam News Agency said two U.S. destroyers shelled Haiphong today but were set afire by shore batteries. The report did not identify the vessels. It claimed they were shelling "a number of populated areas in Haiphong."]

The bombing and mining is aimed, Mr. Nixon said in his speech, at ending the enemy offensive, which continued in the South today on three fronts, most intensively in the Central Highlands province of Kentum, where government forces lost one border camp and beat back a massive attack in another. The North Vietnamese, attacking with tanks and infantry, pushed government rangers out of a camp at Po Lei Kleng, 14 miles west of the provincial capital of Kontum, early today, and drove their way inside the Ben Het camp farther west with 10 tanks before they were repuised. The North Vietnamese are thought to be repositioning their long-range 130mm artillery and regrouping their attacking forces from their 304th and 308th Infantry Divisions.

On the third front, in Binh Long Province, north of Saigon. where the now-ruined city of An Loc has been under siege for a month, the Saigon High Command said that its relief forces. which have been trying to move northward on Highway 13 to break into the encircled town since the middle of April, came under shelling and a ground attack today, but no details were

Kissinger Calls Risk Not Unacceptable

(Continued from Page I) Union had sent to North Vistnam and which the United States had underestimated for a time, he said.

In appealing for Soviet understanding and continuation of preparations for the summit, he revealed that there were two schools of thought within the administration about Soviet intentions and motivee in Hanoi's invasion of South Vietnam.

"One maintains that this operation was supplied, conceived and planned by the Soviet Union in order to impose the maximum humiliation on us prior to the summit," he declared.

The Second Theory

"Another school of thought maintains that, to be sure, the Soviet Union supplied the weapons and therefore is to be held responsible for some of the consequences, bot did not plan this operation, that it could not have insidered it in its interests to take such extreme action," Mr. Kissinger said.

"We tend to lean toward the latter interpretation. We do not assume that this was a deliberate plan to humiliate the United States.

Mr. Kissinger refused to give an outright prediction that the mining of North Vietnamese ports would eventually help to stop Hanol's offensive in the South. He said the attempt to choke off Soviet weapons would probably have little impact on the

Nixon's Address

In his address last night, Mr. Nixon said that air and naval attacks against military targets in North Vietnam, begun after North Vietnam launched its offensive, will continue.

The stringent new war measures will cease when all American prisoners of war held in North Vietnam are returned and when an internationally supervised cease-fire is agreed to throughout Indochina, Mr. Nixon said. At that point the United States will cease all acts of war in Indochina and will withdraw "all American forces from Vietnam within four months," he prom-Countries with ships in Haiphong and other North Wetnamese ports have been notified, the President said, that their ships will have "three daylight periods" to leave in safety.

"Any ships attempting to leave or enter these ports" after three days "will do so at their own rîsk," he said.

Delayed Action Fuses The Navy, reiterating the warning today, said the minefields around the entrances to seven ports will be armed at 1100 GMT Thursday. The mines, sown by naval aircraft, were equipped with delayed action arming devices. There reportedly are 36 ships in Halphong harbor and others in other ports

The Navy said mines were being laid around the entrances to Haiphong, Hon Gai, Cam Pha. Vinh, Quang Khe, Dong Hoi and Than Hoa. Hon Gai and Cam Pha are northeast of Haiohong while Vinh, Quang Khe, Dong Hol and Thanh Hoa are in the North Vietnamese panhandle.

Warning on Cargo .

Adm. Thomas Moorer, chair-man of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said the United States will take whatever action is necessary to keep vessels from landing cargo in North Vietnam But he said U.S. warships would not intercept supply vessels on the high seas. Speaking to reporters after appearing before the Senate Armed Services Committee, he did not specify what preventive action would be taken.

He claimed the mining of harbors was not strictly a blockade in terms of international law. "A blockade must interdict on the high seas," he said.

The President last night justified his extraordinary new actions, long proposed by the military and previously rejected both by him and by President Johnson as too provocative, on the grounds that they repres the only way "to etop the killing.

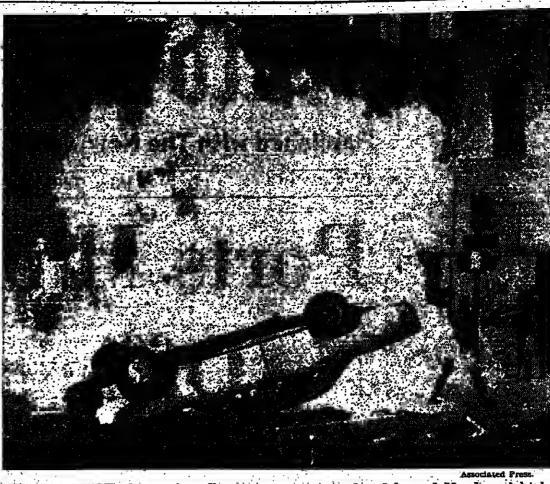

He declared that this country has made "every reasonable offer and tried every possible path" to end the war at the conference table, only to have Hanoi reject every proposal.

The President appealed to the American people to support him in these "difficult moments" and said that all the world "will be watching."

He said he wants to end the war and bring American troops home, but that he is fighting for "a geniune peace, not a peace that is merely a prolude to another

The Negotiations

Here is what over three years of public and private negotiations with Hanoi has come down to: The United States, with the full concurrence of our South Vietnamese allies, has offered the maximum of what any President could offer. We have offered a de-escalation of the fighting. We have offered a ceasefire with a deadline for withdrawal of all American forces. We have offered new elections which would be internationally supervised with Communists participating both in the supervisory body and in the elections themselves. President Thien has offered to resign one month before the elections. We have offered an exchange of prisoners of war in a ratio of 10 North Vietnamese prisoners for every one American prisoner they

North Vietnam has met each of these offers with insolence and

They have flatly and arrogantly refused to negotiate an end to the war and bring peace. Their answer to every peace offer we have made has been to escalate the war. In the two weeks alone since I offered to resume negotiations. Hanoi has launched three new offensives. In those two weeks, the risk that a Communist government may be imposed on the 17 million people of South Vietnam has inreased. And the Communist offensive has now reached the point that it gravely threatens the lives of 60,000 American troops who are still in Vietnam.

Two Issues

There are only two issues left for us in this war.

First, in the face of a massive invasion, do we stand by, jeopardize the lives of 60,000 Americans, and leave the South Victnamese to a long night of terror? This will not happen. We shall do whatever is required to safeguard American lives and American honor. Second, in the face of complete intransigence at the conference table, do we join with our enemy to install a Communist government in South Vietnam?

This too, will not happen. We will not cross the line from generosity to treachery.

We now have a clear, hard choice among three courses of action: Tromediate withdrawal of erican forces; continued attempts at negotiation; or decisive military action to end the war. I know that many Americans favor the first course of action. They believe that the way to end the war is for the United States to get out, and to remove the threat to our remaining troops by aimply withdrawing them. From a political standpoint, this would be an easy choice for me to accept. I did not send over one-half million Americans to Vietnam. I have brought 500,000 home from Vletnam since I took office. But abandoning our commitment in Vietnam here and now would mean turning 17 million South Vietnamese over to the Communist terror and tyranny. It would mean leaving bundreds of American prisoners in Communist hands with no bargaining leverage to get them releas-

PRESIDENTIAL ADDRESS-President Nixon in White House office Monday night after delivering his nationwide speech ordering the mining of North Vietnamese ports.

An American defeat in Vietnam would encourage this kind of aggression all over the world -aggression in which smaller nations, armed by their major allies, could be tempted to attack neighboring nations at will, World peace would be in grave icopardy.

Second Course

The second course of action is to keep on trying to negotiate a settlement. This is the course we have preferred from the beginning. We shall continue to pursue it. But we have made every reasonable offer and tried every possible path for ending this war at the conference table. The problem is that it takes two to negotiate, and that now, as throughout the pest four years, the North Vietnamese arrogantly refuse to negotiate anything but an imposition by the United States of a Communist regime on 17 million people in South Vietnam who do not went a Communist government.

It is plain that what appears to be a choice among three courses of action for the United States is really no choice at all. The killing in this tragic war must stop.

Responsibility

By simply getting out we would only worsen the bloodshed. By relying solely on negotiations we would give an intransigent enemy the time he needs to firess his aggression on the battlefield.

There is only one way to stop the killing, and that is to keep the weapons of war out of the hands of the international outlaws of North Vietnam.

Throughout the war in Vietnam, the United States has exercised a degree of restraint un-precedented in the annals of war. That was 'our responsibility' as a- great nation—a nation which is interested, as America has always been, in peace and not in conquest. However, when the enemy abandons all restraint, throws its whole army into battle on the territory of its neighbor, and refuses to negotiate, we face

I have therefore concluded that Hanoi must be denied the weapons and supplies it needs to continue its aggression. In full coordination with the Republic of Vietnam. I have ordered the following measures which are being implemented as I am speaking

1-All entrances to North Vietnamese ports will be mined to prevent access to these ports and North Vietnamese naval operations from these ports. 2-United States forces have been directed to take appropriate measures within the internal and claimed territorial waters of North Vietnam to interdict delivery of supplies.

3—Rail and all other communications will be cut off to the maximum extent possible.

4—Air and paval strikes against military targets in North Vietnam will continue. These actions are not directed against any other nation. Countries with ships presently in ports have North Vietnamese been notified that their ships will have three daylight periods to leave in safety. After that time, the mines will become active and any ships attempting to leave or enter these ports will do so at their own risk

Conditions

These actions will cease when the following conditions are met: First, all American prisoners of war must be returned. Second, there must be an internationally supervised ceasefire throughout Indochina.

Once prisoners of war are released, and once the internationally supervised ceasefire has begun, we will stop all acts of force throughout Indochina, At that time we will proceed with a complete withdrawal of all American forces from Vietnam within four months. These are terms which would not require surrender and humilistion on the part of anybody. They would permit the United States to withdraw with honor. They would end the killing and bring our POWs home, They would allow negotiations on a political settlement between the Vietnamese themselves. They would permit all the nations

It is appropriate to conclude my remarks tonight with some comments directed individually to each of the major parties involved in the continuing tragedy of the Vietnam war.

To Hanoi

First, to the leaders in Hanci: Your people have already suffered too much in your pursuit of conquest. Do not compound their agony with continuing arrogance. Choose instead the path of a peace that redeems your sacrifices, guarantees true independence, and ushers in an era of reconciliation.

To the people of South Vietnam: You shall continue to have our firm support in your resistance against aggression. It is your spirit that will determine the outcome of the battle. It is your will that will shape the future of your country.

those which are allied with North Vietnam: The actions I have announced tonight are not directed against you. Their sole purpose is to protect the lives of 60,000 Americans who would be gravely endangered in the event that the Communist offensive continues to roll forward, and to prevent the imposition of a Communist gov-ernment by brutal aggression upon a nation of 17 million peo-

To Moscow

I particularly direct my comments tonight to the Soviet Union. We respect the Soviet Union as a great power. We recognize the right of the Soviet Union to defend its interests when they are threatened. The Soviet Union, in turn, must recognize our right to defend our interests. No Soviet soldiers are threatened in Vietnam. Sixty thousand Americans are threatened. We expect you to help your allies. You cannot expect us to do other than continue to help our allies. But let us, and let all great powers, help our allies only for the purpose of their defense-not for the purpose of launching invasions against their neighbors. Otherwise the cause of peace, the cause in which we both have so great a stake, will be seriously jeopardized.

Our two nations have made significant progress in our negotiations in recent months. We are near major agreements on nuclear arms limitations, on trade, on a host of other issues. Let us not slide back toward the dark shadows of a previous age. We do not ask you to sacrifice your principles or your friends. But neither should you permit Hanol's intransigence to hiot out the prospects we together have so patiently prepared.

To Americans

Finally, to the American people: I ask you for the same strong support you have always given your President in difficult moments. It is you most of all that the world will be watching.

I know how much you want to end this war. I know how much you want to bring our men home. I think you know, from all that I have said and done these past three and a half years. much I, too, want to end the war and bring our men home.

You want peace. I want peace. But you also want honor and not defeat. You want a genuine peace. not a peace that is merely prelude to another war.

At this moment we must stand together in purpose and resolve. As so often in the past, we Americans did not choose to resort to war. It has been forced upon us by an enemy that has shown utter contempt toward every overture we have made for

That is why tonight I ask for your support of this decision, a deciden which has only one burpose-not to expand the war, not escalate the war, but to end this war and to win the kind of peace that will last. God's help and with your support we shall accomplish that

North Vietnam Rejects 'Nixon's Ultimatum'

Vietnamese people will never accept Mr. Nixon's ultimatum." the spokesman for the North Vietnamese delegation to the Paris peace talks declared today.

In the first official reaction from Hanol to President Nixon's speech announcing the blockade of North Vietnamese ports, the spokesman said:

"As long as the Nixon administration continues its aggression in Vietnam, pursues its policy of 'Vietnamization' of the war and continues escalating the war against the Democratic Republic of [North] Vietnam, the entire Vietnamese people, united as a single man, are resolved to pursue their struggle of resistance until obtaining their fundamental objectives: independence, freedom

U.S. Will Draft 9,000 in June Under Lottery

WASHINGTON, May 9 (AP). The Selective Service System amnounced today that it would order about 9,000 young men with lottery numbers 1 through 35 to report to the Army in June. The move is aimed at completing a March call for 15,000 men during the April-May-June period, the draft headquarters said. Only those men with numbers 1 through 15 had been taken until now.

Most of the new inductees will be registrants in classes 1-A and 1-A-O who were born in 1952, but "a small number of older men also will be issued orders," the announcement said.

These are men who recently have lost deferments or whose initial postponements of industion expire in June." The new round of orders will

U.S. Explains Actions to UN As Collective Self-Defense

Mines Called Safest Way

U.S. Hopes to Avoid Clash With Russians

By Michael Getler

WASHINGTON - May .9 (WP): One of the oldest and least glamorous of weapons in the vest U.S. arsenal—the antishipping mine-has suddenly been invoked as the American weapon of choice in the duel now unfolding with the Soviet

For millions of Americans, raised on World War II movies in which these bobbing black seaborne bombs blow freighters in which these to bits, the use of such devices for a critical role in the missile age may seem urreal,

Yet, in the Nixon administration's current predicament, the mines are an obvious first choice, now that the decision apparently has been made that the outcome in Vietnam is important enough to the United States to run the risk of a confrontation with the Soviet Union.

The use of these weapons is intended to try to halt the North Vietnamese offensive in South Vietnam by shutting off the flow of Soviet and Commmist-bloc ships that take a steady stream of arms into the

Avoids Bigger Risks

The presence of the mines is regarded by the administration as a way to achieve this without taking the even greater risks of a full-scale naval blockade in which U.S. warships would try to stop Soviet supply vessels in a scene remmiscent of the Cuban missile crisis of 10 years ago.

For the last several weeks, hundreds and possibly thousands of aerial mines the types that can be carried by Navy carrierbased planes-have been loaded on ammunition ships at the big U.S. base at Subic Bay in the Philippines and are now on Navy carriers off the Vietnamese

These mines weigh about 1,000 pounds each and are seeded by Navy A-6 and A-7 attack planes. They are dropped in patterns around harbors and are equipped special electronic devices allow them to be pre-set, like an alarm clock. much

.The mines can be dropped into the water and set to be "armed" -that is, ready to go off if a ship comes near-several hours or even days in advance.

A 3-Day Delay

Thus, there can be a threeday delay, as the President said, in which ships in a mined harbor can get out before the mines are armed or during which incoming ships can make a decision whether to proceed.

The United States has several types of aerial mines. Some arepressure sensing—that is, after they are armed they explode when the mine senses the change in pressure created by a passing

Others explode sound of a ship's engines is detected. Others respond to the magnetic field set up when a ship's hull passes nearby. Others combine these various techniques. The mines are dropped from planes and are anchored to the ocean or harbor floor. The mines are usually attached to a long cable and "float" from these anchors at various depths below Ald to Removal

Anchoring the mines and laying them in patterns helps minesweepers remove them after the military crisis is over. minesweepers are also said to be able to disarm the mines electronically.

The Russians have a large fleet of minesweepers. There have been unconfirmed reports that some may be leaving Soviet ports but not as yet heading toward Haiphong

The answer to this U.S. military planners said, is simply laying more mines, without a direct shootout with the Russians. "It's simply the cleanest way to do the job," one military planner said.

To Work to Rule, Ban Overtime as of Friday

LONDON, May 9 (Reuters) .-Britain's three railway unions tonight voted to resume on Friday their go-slow tactics in a campaign for increased pay, posing a new threat of disruption to nationwide train services.

Union leaders ordered that a ban on overtime and a work-toshould begin Friday at a minute past midnight.

A slowdown last month-when drivers refused to move trains unless operating rules were scrupulously followed-was halted by court order for 14 days, but this cooling-off period ran out at midnight last night.

The unions, representing 300,000 railmen, have agreed with management of the state-owned British Rail system on a 12 1/2 percent pay rise and a £20 weekly minimum wage. They are deadlocked on the date of its implementation.

The unions want the higher pay rates back-dated to May I, while British Rail's management is holding out for June 5.

Another Rubicon

The American experience in Vietnam has been a succession of Rubicons crossed of dice cast, each declaredly inevitable, each leading in turn to another choice, another river to cross. Now President Nixon has made his own choice: to meet the North Vietnamese offensive with the mining of Haiphone harbor and the bombing of supply lines from China. And it is, although only one in the chain of grim events, perhaps the most serious of all.

That the provocation was great can be taken for granted. Hanoi would neither accept liberal terms for a peaceful settlement, nor wait for Mr. Nixon to pull out all American forces. Whether it feared that Vietnamization, given more time, might work, or whether it was specifically trying to crown its long war with triumph over both Americans and South Vietnamese is immaterial. The North Vietnamese took risks and losses that were avoidable—under any common-sense appreciation of the conditions. And Mr. Nixon has responded in kind.

Some kind of blockade of North Vietnam has been in the wind from almost the beginning of the war. It was not undertaken, because, as the President said, in Vietnam "the United States has exercised a degree of restraint unprecedented in the annals of war." But, contrary to Mr. Nixon's statement, Americans cannot be particularly proud of this, because it was not an act of grace. Rather, it was a determination to avoid the kind of complications that followed the march to the Yalu in Korea-a direct threat to China: a direct involvement with the Soviet Union.

Now the President of the United States has abandoned one of these restraints, in a move that is dubious in international law and morality-for a state not formally at war to set up a blockade, in effect if not in set terms, raises many questions. Moreover, bombs and mines do not distinguish among persons, cargoes or flags. In addition, the action risks all the positive benefits Mr. Nixon has been seeking, and had almost within his grasp, through his active policy of negotiation, rather than confrontation. Finally, this step cannot be immediately decisive in respect to the military crisis in South Vietnam.

The President did leave one escape clause in his dramatic move. It is an important one: an internationally supervised cease-fire without conditions; the release of American prisoners by Hanol, and the "complete withdrawal of all American forces from Vietnam within four months." These, as the President said, are not humiliating terms for the other side. They would permit a political settlement by the Vietnamese. And they would end the bloodshed.

The temptation for other nations to cross their own Rubicons in this situation is great. The North Vietnamese have already denounced the President's terms as an "ultimatum." which at best begs the question. But while crossing Rubicons may score debating points, and salve national honor, it leaves too many dead behind, risks too many more dead across the river, for any positive benefits that might accrue. How many. Rubicons—to mix a geographical metaphor lie this side of Armageddon?

Saving SALT

The many dangers that lie ahead in Vietnam are exceeded only by the threat to the peace of the world if President Nixon's imposition Monday night of a blockade of North Vietnam undermines the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks accord that is virtually assured in Helsinki.

The historic importance of the impending nuclear missile pact has now led one of the Pentagon's most stalwart supporters on Capitoi Hill, Sen, John Stennis, the chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, to observe that the strategic arms agreement "is more important than Vietnam."

Prospects for a missile curb have been greatly improved by Moscow's agreement in summit exchanges to include submarinelaunched as well as land-based missiles in the projected offensive weapons freeze. Soviet reluctance to yield to this American demand had been the chief remaining issue in the first-stage arms pact being drafted in Helsinki, The United States, in return, evidently is prepared to agree to Soviet demands for parity in limiting defensive anti-ballistic missile systems—the other troublesome issue yet to be finally resolved.

Under a reported compromise agreement, both countries will have the same number of ABM launchers, 150 to 200 probably, as Moscow insisted. But the Soviet Union evidently has agreed to an asymmetric scheme under which the United States can defend two Minuteman sites, each of which contains many more ICBM silos than the one ICBM site the Soviet Union will defend in addition to its existing Moscow ABM system. Intricate agreements on radar numbers and locations also are believed to have been worked out.

The ABM limitation, which will be in treaty form, is of far greater importance than the offensive missile freeze. The assurance that anti-missile defense will be held to a low level interrupts the traditional offense-defense race in weaponry. It reduces the incentive on both sides to expand MIRV multiple warheade and other offensive missiles and opens the way for a secondstage agreement to curb MIRV and roll back offensive missile numbers. The huge offensive missile build-up of recent years has been fueled largely by fear that the other side would perfect an anti-missile defense that would destroy the stability of mutual deter-

The offensive missile freeze, of limited duration pending negotiation of a comprehensive second-stage arms control pact, will meet the Pentagon's most vocal immediate concern. It will limit the over-all Soviet ICBM force and also halt expansion of the giant Soviet SS-9 ICBMs, and the mysterious "big hole" silos, constructed presumably for a new generation of monster missiles. But it reportedly will not bar missile modernization or even replacement of missile submarines by newer, longer-range underseas boats such as the projected American ULMS.

The offensive weapons race could continue, both in expensive new submarines and numbers of MIRV warheads, as well as in qualitative improvements. But the expectation is that the pace will slow down, pending negotistion of further accords.

Long years of negotiations still he ahead finally to stabilize the strategic arms balance and eliminate some of the vast overkill both sides have constructed. But the first-stage agreement that now seems virtually assured promises a new era of increased security that should favor a wider East-West détente.

The Earth Cleaners

Will next month's mammoth United Nations conference in Stockholm on "The Human Environment" do any good? More than 1,500 delegates and observers from more than 100 countries will have 11 days in five separate conference halls to debate plans designed to save the world from what has lightheartedly become known as "Doomsday." This is supposed to be the point at which population and industrial growth will have to stop if our world is not to cease to function. The Massachusetta Institute of Technology has set a term of 70-100 years within which the problems concerned will have to be solved-or else.

Of course, pollution of all kinds is an increasingly serious problem. Urban development, food production and the depletion of natural resources are all matters which require close monitoring and control by national and local authorities, particularly in densely populated and industrialized countries like Britain, Again, the problems arising from an increasing population are of immense importance to poor countries with a subsistence level of living. One trouble about the Stockholm conference, however, is that all the matters enumerated above, with the exception of pollution of the ocean and the atmosphere, can be dealt with only by national governments and not by any form of international declarations of intent.

Nixon's Dilemma

President Nixon is confronted with a tragic dilemma: to run the risk of a defeat in the field, the first in American history, or to go back on his determination to bring all "the boys" back home, In either case it is from an impossible operation that Mr. Nixon is trying to extricate himself. Unless he considers the escalation of the war as a means -very risky indeed-of reviving the negotiations. If such is the case, the intransigence displayed by the White House may be only a facade behind which a major political concession is perhaps being prepared.

May 10, 1897 PARIS—An admirable instance of generosity has been provoked by the fearful fire in the Rue Jean-Goujon. An anonymous donor has cddressed to the Committee of the Charity Bazaar the sum of 937,438 francs, which, with the 45,000 francs taken on the first day of the fair, represents the total proceeds of last year's sales. To be added to this sum is the total of the subscription raised by the Figaro, which this morning amounts to 582,039 francs. Thus again is the irony of fate exemplified; out of evil has come good.

There is nothing left of the theatre but stark, naked walls pointing to the sky and the dressing rooms of the actors. The fire, which is believed to have been caused by a short circuit, started in the Wings and developed such heat that it melted the metal fire curtain.

PARIS.—Itely may have the most democratic regime in the Mediterranean but it suffers from one disturbing weakness: It doesn't often sork. As Bainville said of the Versailles Treaty: "It's too hard to be soft and too soft to be hard."
The Christian Democratic party, around which governments are customarily formed, has seen its recent leadership concentrate on watching where the crowd is going-so it can rush out and be discovered at its head. This is not vibrant leadership.

For the past decade the crowd moved gradually leftward and one premier after another sought to accommodate coalitions that further extended an "opening to the left." This trend seems to have been halted by the present election which saw the national mood edging slightly toward the right.

Stability

The word "slightly" must be emphasized. Once again remarkable stability in the public mood was reflected. The neo-Fascists gained somewhat but, considering that their vote was combined with the former monarchists, their rise is not frightening. They have passed their peak.

Less easy to chart but more deeply significant of the national mood was the fact that both Communists and Christian Democrats campaigned on a more conservative line than at any time for a decade. Each party was acutely aware of the resentful mood in puzzled and ineffectual Italy.

The business community resents etrikes and labor unrest; labor resents high rents and price in-flation. The farmers have been plagued by both and the nation as a whole has been living off its capital by producing more and consuming less.
Yet this profoundly disturbing condition seemed to have no deepseated reflection in the vote. The extreme right-wing was well below its 1953 zenith and the non-

The people are enormously shrewd and, having had no efficient central administration, they know how to scramble. In other lands when things get very bad, the state must intervene; not in Italy. The parliament is ridiculous, comic, with all its games and conspiracies. But the nation moves forward-sometimes with astonishing speed."

Useful Accomplishments

The Italian nation hasn't been moving forward during the past year but it managed this week to get a reprieve from possible catastrophe and a chance to inject some vitality into a rather undynamic system. There has been attrition of the tiny parties which allowed the giant political combines a certain ability to maneuver. Yet besic flexibility remains a feature of the outlook.

The killing of Oberdan Saliustro, manager of Fiat, in Buenos Aires (IHT, April II) and the killing of NATO technicians in Turkey (IHT, March 30) have caught the headlines and shocked world opinion. What is the basic difference between a diplomat representing his country abroad and a businessman representing his company abroad? Aren't businessmen entitled to protection under international law?

Thieu a Stumbling Block

Time to Negotiate

By W. Averell Harriman

Mr. Harriman, U.S. Ambassador-at-large under Pres idents Kennedy and Johnson, was the first chief U.S. negotiator at the Paris peace talks.

WASHINGTON.—The prospects proposal Certain provisions for negotiated peace in Vietnam were never more favorable than when President Nixou took office. Less than three months had passed since we had reached understanding with the North Vietnamese which permitted the ending of the bombing to be followed immediately by substantive peace talks between the four parties.

At the time North Vietnam signaled its willingness to reduce the level of violence by withdrawing almost 90 percent of its troops 22 of 25 regiments from the northern two provinces of South Vietnam- which had been the area of fierce fighting. Half went over 200 miles into North Vietnam. The United States was then in a favorable bargaining position since it had over onehalf million men in South Viet-

President Thieu sabotaged the talks from the very outset. Although he had agreed in Oc-tober, 1968, to join the negutia-tions after the bombing stopped, he first reneged on his commitment and then created the undignified dispute over the shape of the table in order to break up or at least delay talks until the new Nixon administration took office.

Finally, just before Inaugural Day, the path was cleared for substantive negotiation including the private talks, which were the only place progress could be

Instead the new administration took as its first task the forging of a closer bond with Thieu. For his part, Thieu saw his primary goal as maintaining his personal position. This meant opposing a negotiated solution since any compromise would inevitably have eliminated his power.

Thieu scuttled real negotiations by refusing to have his representative participate in private meetings with the Vict Cong. which he claimed would give them undue prestige. Two months later, he condescended to tolerate private meetings, but stated under no circumstances would he agree to a coalition government or permit a Communist party in South Vietnam. We had had great difficulty in getting North Vietnam to agree to negotiate with Thieu in the first place and now they refused to deal with him.

WASHINGTON.—With his Y speech Monday night, President Nixon made it more than ever inevitable that the Vietnam war—the issue which, above all others, gave him the presidency—will determine whether he retains office in this election year.

His decision to mine the North Vietnam harbors and risk a direct confrontation with the Soviet Union represents a political gamble second only in significance to the military-diplomatic show-down the President deliberately

Held Accountable

In his first major speech on Vietnam as President-delivered just a week less than three years ago—the President said:

"In my campaign for the presidency, I pledged to end this war in a way that would increase our chances to win true and lasting peace in Vietnam, in the Pacific, and in the world. I am determined to keep that pledge. If I fail to do so, I expect the American people to hold me accountable for that failure." A year later, in April, 1970, Mr. Nixon defended his decision to send American forces Into Cambodia by saying: "I would rather be a one-term President and do what I believe is right than to be a two-term

President at the cost of seeing America become a second-rate power and to see this nation accept the first defeat in its proud 190-year history." On Monday night, as he made a move far more hazardous in its implications than the Cambodian incursion, the President invoked that same rhetoric and again asked the nation to give him "the same strong support you have always given your President in difficult moments." But his own words-and the BELFAST, May 9 (UPI).—The Official wing of the Irish Republican Army today accused the militant IRA Provisionals of waging a campaign of violence against its members. Violence also continued against the British Army. A bumb exploded among "security proof" army huts in Londonderry, injuring 11 soldiers.

An official IRA statement said growing attacks on its membere by the Provisional wing reached a victous climax" when a girl in the Cathotic Ardoyne area was "physically assaulted and searched at gunpoint" by a Provisional.

"Another Official member was kicked and beaten by Provisionals," it said. "The attacks seem to be on a coordinated basis throughout the whole Belfast area."

The Markst-oriented Official wing of the IRA has long been verbally warring with the break-away Provisionals, but this was the first time the Officials have publicly accused their ideological opponents of escalating the feud with physical violence.

The statement said the Provisional campaign of "sectarian bombing" has isolated the IEA from the ordinary people.

In Londonderry, the army began an investigation to discover how a "security-proof" post had been penetrated by a terrorist homber. The explosion ripped through huts adjacent to a barracks early today. Of the II injured-soldiers, nine were treated in a hospital, although none was seriously injured.

A few hours after the explosion, the city's Bligh's Lane army post overlooking the Catholic Creggan area came under intensive sniper fire for more than an bour. An army spokesman said soldiers returned the fire and hit four of the attackers.

Greek Regime Exiles Seven and Bans Two Groups

ATHENS, May 9 (AP).—The anthorities today dissolved two anti-government organizations and announced the "deportation" of seven people for making

"anarchistic declarations."

The seven included Anastasios Peponis, who was director-general of the state radio in 1964 during the George Papandreou Center Union administration, and attorneys George Koumantou, Constantine Alavanou and Dimitris Pap-

They were presumably being sent to remote mountain villages or to islands in the Aegean.

The government claimed that the seven men through the Society for the Study of Greek Problems and the Helieniz-European Youth Movement, at med at creating "a tense climate and disturbances in general through extremist activities." The two groups were dissolved.

Last week, Athens lawyer Panayiotis Canellakis, of the Hellenic-European Youth Movement, was arrested with two students. Security police said the three had planned anti-government demonstrations.

Burundi President Charges Rebels Committed Atrocities

KAMPALA, Uganda, May 9 (Reuters).— Burundi's President Michel Micombero said last night that armed bands had committed "indescribable atroctiles" in Burundi in the last few days.

But the president, in his first radio broadcast since the attempted coup in Burundi 10 daya ago, added that the situation in almost all parts of the tiny East African state was back to normal.

A few hours later, however, missionaries reported trouble had broken out again.

Several thousand people are reported to have died in the coup attempt, which was accompanied by massacres in many parts of southern Burundi.

In his eight-minute message, hroadcast repeatedly by the government radio, the Voice of Revolution, monitored here, President Micombero said, "In the last few days our country has been through tragic times. Armed bands, animated by barbarous and inhuman feelings, fell upon our peaceful population.

"Mothers with babes in arms were massacred, children were mutilated, and in describable atrocities were committed by these bandits. Mothers-to-be were treated so horribly that it defies human understanding."

Families Wiped Out

Col. Micombero said members of the armed forces had also others on the field of battle.

He appealed to Burundians to be calm and united, so that urrently needed help could be organized for people living in those areas most affected by these "furious events."

President Micombero assured Burundi's four million people that those responsible for the country's troubles will be made to feel the full weight of the law, but he did not say who they are.

British missionaries in outlying parts of Burundi said today that new and serious trouble has broken out in at least three areas of the tiny East African state.

They were trying to evacuate their stations because security has deteriorated sharply, they added in radio-telephone conversations monitored here.

A missionary speaking from four miles outside the northern provincial center of Ngozi said that for tha first time since the attempted coup sparked wide-spread disorder, he had not been able to reach the town.

Similar reports came from missions in the east and south. In the east, Italian missionaries left their station last night to try to reach the capital, Bujumbura, it was reported here.

In Dar es Salaam, meanwhile, it was officially stated that nearly 6,300 refugees have fled from Burundi to Tanzania. International aid groups are mounting an urgent relief operation.

Officials of the United Nations and charity organizations met yesterday in the far western town of Kigoma, near Burundi's southern border, to organize aid for refugees who have been pouring in for several days.

Peter O'Toole Shines In Official U.K. Entry

By Thomas Quinn Curtiss

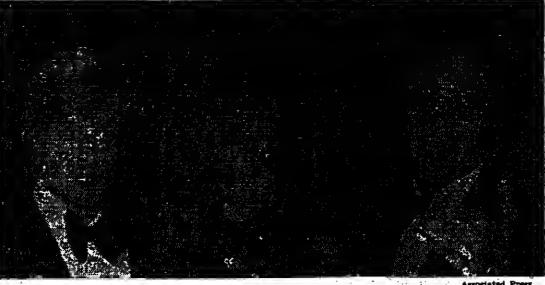

CANNES, May 9 (HET).—If there is one film in Cannes that is not too long, it must be "Sinderella" the 7-minute slice of fairytale erotica that has been drawing crowds to a fifth-floor room in the Carlton Hotel. The showings of this midget movie, exhibited outside the competition, have now stopped as the film has been purchased by a distributor. Cutters seem to have been left off the guest list. Every film that has been seen in the main program could have benefited from scissors. Precise timing appears a lost art.

"The Ruling Class" (2 hours 35 minutes) is officially representing Britain, an odd envoy of the crown. It has many merits, but concise editing is not among them. Peter Medak, the director, has exactingly reproduced Peter Barnes's wild spoof of the crum-bling English establishment. The film differs from the play on the London stage in only one particular: the acting. It is the acting and not the play that is the thing in the motion picture

The 13th Earl of Gurney dies while enacting his nightly fantasy of power and guilt. His mad nephew, incarcerated in a mental institution, inherits his title and vast country estate. The new earl, a religious maniac, arrives clad as a Franciscan monk and is convinced that he is Jesus Christ, a delusion his scheming relatives are forced to accept. However, they snare him into a marriage with another uncle's discarded mistress, intending to return him to the asylum when an heir is born. Their plots go awry, for the madman is "cured." throwing off his pious robes turning into Jack the Ripper and taking his seat with gaudy pomp in the House of Lords

Peter O'Toole shines in his Jekyll-Hyde assignment, playing both roles with contagious en thusiasm and always-though the humor of the second half waxes macabre-for laughs. He is particularly engaging as the rol-licking saint of the beginning and seems to relish the fun as much as we do, cutting short his sermons with a rendition of the

The script itself is extravagant With its occasional song and dance numbers, it is more akin to one of the campy spectacles of the Alcazar nightclub in Paris than to mordant satire. The witty mockery of archaic mores is far more enjoyable than the sinister melodramatics of the finish, which suggests that only a manuacal murderer is qualified to wear the royal ermine. Part Two could be shortened, but one wishes there were more of Part One.

"Jeremiah Johnson" (1 hour

52 minutes) is Sydney Pollack'e new film, a philosophical Western, in which Robert Redford stara. It is based on a novel, Mountain Man," by Vardis Fisher, and tells of a young fur-trapper of the early 19th century who, disgusted with "civilization, goes into the wilds to live alone. But though he has escaped from the laws of man, he finds himself confronted with the sterner rule of nature—to say nothing of the discomforting presence of unfriendly Indians. He marries a squaw to save his scalp and adopts an abandoned little boy, both of whom are massacred when the redskins go on the warpath. The trapper's adventures in the winter Rockies and his dilemma are effectively depicted, but the collection of episodes needs tightening.

The critics' selection program serves as a sort of poet's corner of the festival. It has just presented two films that command

The first is "Fritz the Cat" (90 minutes) in which the impudent, sex-seeking feline of Robert Crumb's underground press comic strip becomes the leading character of a feature length animated cartoon. Ralph Bakshi's version of the hippie cat's exploits among the drug-addicted riffraff in Greenwich Village, among blackpower advocates and among nihilist bomb throwers is hilar-

The second critics' selection of note is "Winter Soldiers," a documentary that records the evidence given at an investigation conducted by the Vietnam Veterans Against the War in Detroit in 1971. Cinematically the film is crude, but the information it imparts is enough to make Ivan the Terrible'e blood run cold and to make every American wonder why the government does not call the witnesses (ex-soldiers) to Washington to repeat their

The witnesses disqualify themselves to some extent by their appearances this is mentioned during the discussion, but no plausible excuse is stated seeming on sight to be members of fanciful Bohemia. But if there is truth in their testimony, all reputable people will be deeply disturbed. In wars, declared and undeclared, it is not considered honorable to stab and skin women, to decapitate prisoners and to set their beads on poles, or to shoot children on sight. The case made here demands official in-

Edward Petherbridge has so far eschewed the former ambition, perhaps due to spending three years as Guildenstern in the National Theatre's "Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead." But he can now be seen in his own show, "Who Thought It?" at the Arts Theatre, It is, happily, much better than the last one-man show at that theater. Mr. Petherbridge is an actor of great talent, versatility, and charm.

The evening passes agreeably enough although I feared the worst in the opening moments then he was seen prancing in silhquette as Pierrot. His skills were seen at their best in "Vultures," which ranges from horror to a sudden break into a raucous music-hall number that revealed an unexpected talent for comedy.

Unfortunately, his abilities were not enough to prevent occasional boredom. Much of his material weak, for which he must bear the blame since he commissioned

it. In one instance, he gave writer Alex Durant nothing more than the title "Pavan for Two Masks" and duly received something as pretentious as that suggests. Mr. Durant relies on overblown rhetoric. The other author. Colin Bennet, uses words more precisely in the title piece, "Who Thought It?", before providing a indicrously melodramatic finale. Mr. Petherbridge's fine judge-daring, are not matched by his literary taste. I would have preferred to see his talents put to use within a play, particularly at the Arts Theatre which, in recent years, has presented little decent adult entertainment. The last good play that I can remember there

The first, "Sister Son/ji," a mono-

The two vignettes by Nell Harris, "Flayers Inn" and "Cop and Blow," Bernes credits with "a certain vitality." However, laurels for the evening go to Richard "Gettin' It Together." "simple, brief drama about recognizable people," Barnes says, that can claim "a dramatic honesty which the rest of the evening never approaches."

"Different Times," a musical written and directed by Michael Brown, who also wrote the score and the lyrics, left The Times reviewer unimpressed, "The book is terrible The music and lyrics are less easy to describe because they are less memorable. They were the kind of songs you went into the theater whistling," Clive Barnes comments. leumont-Schneider Merger Pact

Jeumont-Schneider plans to merge with Sta. Merlin-Gerin following the "failure" of talks with Cie, Electro-Mecanique, a French subsidiary of Brown Boveri of Switzerland. Jeumont-Schneider owns about 12 percent of Merlin-Gerin. The merger announcement said negotiations with Brown Boveri had falled because "conditions put forward by Brown Boyeri meant that Jeumont-Schneider would have passed under the absolute control of the Swiss group." The statement added that "an agreement with Merilu-Gerin would allow a purely French solution" to the problems facing the heavy electrical industry.

Japanese Auto Exports Up in March Japan's auto exports rose to 184,329 vehicles in March, a gain of 31.7 percent from a year earlier and 9.2 percent from the previous month, the Japan Auto Manufacturers Association reports. sought were not completely realized. The dollar was also devalued. To no one's real surprise, this package has produced no quick results. The Japanese trade surplus is not expected to shrink significantly this year, and some forecasters even see an increase into the $4 billion range.

There are several reasons for

One is that currency changes, tariff changes and changes in trading patterns all take timepossibly two years—to take effect. The question is whether U.S. election politics will allow such a leisurely resolution, Japan is worried that Mr. Nixon is already growing impatient and that he wants results to show by Novem-

Tougher Policy on Dumping

An example of this is seen in the get-tough policy on dumping that was adopted by the U.S. Tressury in April. Under this policy, which appears aimed at Japan, foreign goods that fail to reflect changed currency values in their export prices will be subject to dumping investigation.

Another reason for pessimism on the U.S.-Japanese trade actwo economies are out of phase with each other.

Orthodox economic strategy calls for a devaluation to be ac-companied by severe deflation to hold down domestic consumption and emphasize exports. But for political reasons, Mr. Nixon's strategists, having devalued the dollar, have embarked on strong domestic expansion at an an nual rate of 8 percent in real terms-which can only suck in more Japanese imports.

Exports Rampant

The U.S. propensity to import is twice that of Japan. In the meantime, Japan continues in a relatively slow-growth phase with low domestic demand Instead of the 12 to 15 percent growth of recent years, the Japanese economy increased by only 6.1 percent last year to a gross national prod-uct of $255 billion—still the third largest in the world.

The outlook for overall growth this year is thus only about 8.9 percent-with exports rampant and imports shiggish in com-

The Japanese govern following orthodox strategy by coupling its revaluation of the yen with expansionary budget policies. The intent of sharp increases in public works programs and other stimulants is to increase domestic demand for imports and a greater share of Japan's own production

It is not yet clear how ful this policy will be. The re-sults should be apparent by fall, but there is already planning for additional government to assure results.

Tax on Profits To 40 Percent

9-Point Slash in Rate Takes Effect on Jan. 1

OTTAWA May 9 (Reuters) .-Canadian taxes on profits from domestic manufacturing and processing will be slashed next Jan. 1 to 40 percent from the current rate of 49 percent under a new budget presented to the House of Commons last night,

However, the new budget offers nothing in the way of cuts for most of the nation's eight million taxpayers.

Finance Minister John Turner, presenting his budget to Parliament, said that the cost of new machinery and equipment in those industries may be deducted from income for tax savings over two years instead of about 10. This is part of a package "to re-vitalize the manufacturing and processing industries," he said.

Other tax concessions will facilitate the purchase of new machinery and equipment, he added. Spending in the fiscal year which began April 1 will risa by more than 9 percent to an estimated $16.12 billion from $14.75 billion last year. Revenues are anticipated to rise 11 percent to $15.67 billion from $14.15 bil-lion last year. This will narrow the budget deficit by $150 million to $450 million in the cur-rent fiscal year.

Manufacturer Group Happy TORONTO, May 9 (AP-DJ) .-"It's a real shot-in-the-arm budget," Gerard Filion, president of the Canadian Manufacturers Association (CMA), said of the new budget. The "tax cuts are a powerful tonic for both the manufacturing industry and those senior and needy citizens who have been given worthwhile relief," he said. The finance minister has recognized that the manufacturing and processing industries are the powerhouse of the economy and by reducing the corporate tax rate, giving a fast two-year write-off to new machinery and equipment and expanding the earned depletion incentive in the extractive industries, the government has zeroed in on the key requirements, creating more jobs by making industry competitive at home and abroad, Mr. Filion

Canada to Cut Nixon Decision Triggers N.Y. Dive

By Vartanig G. Vartan NEW YORK, May 9 (NYT).--Stock prices buckled today in reaction to President Nixon's address last night announcing the mining of North Vietnamese ports and other measures taken to prevent the flow of arms and military supplies to the enemy. The Dow Jones industrial average, recovering somewhat from a whopping loss in the initial hour of trading on the New York Stock Exchange, fell 12.73 to 925.12—its biggest decline in more than six

It was a trying day for investors, as the escalated combat in Vietnam dominated attention. Conflicting reports from the war zone dictated the shape and direction of the market,

Short-Lived Recovery At 10:46 a.m. the Dow was down 18.63 and some important stocks had not opened for trading. Then, as the flood of selling by investors abated, a swift recovery took place. At 11:30 a.m., the bluechip indicator was down by only

Shortly after 1 p.m., when news dispatches quoted a Chinese report that U.S. planes and ships had attacked two of its merchant ships, stock prices gave way again to selling pressure. It ended as a lopsided market with only 180 advances and 1,380 declines. Two gold issues set yearly highs. Dome Mines rose 1 1/2

If you're looking for one, then look first in the Classified ad section of the Herald Tribune. All kinds, every day. And don't miss our famed International Executive Opportunities ?' feature, which is published every week in the Tribune.

Products.

If you make better ones, they say, the world will beat a path to your door. You can pave that path with good advertising.

And for all of Europe, there's no better medium than the Herald Tribune.

than the Herald Tribune. the newspaper the significant Europeans read.

Food.

The fine art of good eating is a favorite European pastime - and gourmers eat up the Tribune's food articles,

As per recently published balance sheet: Total assets and resources UP by an average 15%, to BF 259,000 million.

A 29 branch addition to our domestic network and a new EBIC Representative Office in Toronto, Ont., ensuring a combined 1126 unit coverage of the Belgian and International markets.

LOOKING AHEAD:

The SIGMA Model: Financial engineering. RENTINVEST: A new investment plan. WAGE DOMICILIATION: A new facility for wage earners.

One might think that in the 46-year history of this game every major aspect would have been made the subject of a book. But this is not quite true, and Fred Karpin of Washington, D.C., who is equally prominent as a teacher and a writer, has now filled one of the gaps with "The Finesse," published last week by Prentice-Hall. The price is $7.95 hard cover. or $2.95 paper.

The author's preliminary analysis of finessing situations is not as complete as it might have been, but the collection of illustrative deals is excellent. One of these, shown in the diagram, brings out an unusual point.

There was some irony about the auction. In standard methods, South would open one notrump and North would raise to three. West would lead a spade, and the declarer would fail with routine play.

The actual auction gave more information to the defenders, which worked to their detriment.

PAUL-ENVOY EXTRAORDINARY

THIS is an unusual book about women friends in his one of history's unusual men. are obvious evidence of his Nothing new can possibly be said, except nonsense of course, about Paul the Apostle, and Muggeridge and Vidler do not try. What they attempt is a novel way of presenting a com-plex personal figure who is not an easy here to the modern taste.

In form, the book is a dialogue between the two friends written while they re-trace the steps of Paul on his missionary journeys. It was prepared at the request of the BBC as a TV commentary. The text is accompanied by excellent maps and superb photographs in color. This is a beautiful book to look at.

To whet the reader's curiosity, there is an opening section of

The fastidiously critical may be distressed by the handling of Paul's Mars Hill speech in Athens. It is dealt with as if there were no reasonable question about its authenticity as reported in Acts 17:16-32. But I think they (the authors) have followed the right course here. Their book is a general introduction to Paul-and who knows? Maybe he did give the after all.

Unbeknownst to Chamberlain, 'Sprain' Was a Chipped Bone

By Mark Asher

LOS ANGELES, May 9 (WP).-Unbeknownst to him, Wilt Chamberlain led the Los Angeles Lakers to their first National Basketball Association championship Sunday night with a chipped bone in his right wrist, not merely a severe sprain as advertised. In fact, said team physician Dr. Robert Kerlan, both of Chamberlain's hands have been battered so much in the Lakers' drivs to the greatest season in NBA history that yesterday he advised the 7-foot-1, 375-pound center to consult a nationally prominent hand specialist "to see if he

San Francisco at Montreal, night, ios Angeles at New York; night, san Diego at Philadelphia, night, Houston at St. Louis, night, Pittsburgh at Atlanta, night, Chicago, at Constanati, night, Chicago, at Constanati, night, answere at IFAGUE oceds corrective surgery." Dr. Kerlan expressed surprise known outside the Laker family, which had its official celebration last night at The Forum Club for the team's four - games - to - one triumph - over the New York Knicks, capped by Sunday's 114-

100 clincher. Chamberlain, listed as a "very doubtful" participant on Saturday, was named winner of the car given the playofts' outstanding player following his Sunday performance, which included 29 rebounds, 24 points, 10 blocked shots and uncounted picks and screens. He were football line-

men's pads on both hands. A Confirmation

Dr. Kerlan confirmed that Chamberlain did not know shout the chipped bone by saying: "No, and I'd prefer him not knowing shout it. I don't know how you found out about it. I don't know If it's a recent chip or not.

The chipped bone was discovered in X-rays taken Saturday following the Lakers' return from game No. 4 in New York. In that game. Chamberlain broke a firstquarter fall with his right hand, Dr. Kerlan gave insight into why the star center is reluctant to talk about injuries and ill-"Wilt's taken some knocks in the past about not being able to play injured. It never happened with us (Chamberlain has been a Laker for four years). The only injuries that have kept him out with us have been major ones. The worst was the torn tendon off the kneecap that had to be resttached."

Dr. Kerlan sald Chamberlain had received no shots of painkiller all geason, throughout the 33-game winning streak, the longest in NBA history, or the recordsetting 69-victory regular season, or the playoffs.

The reason for his pessimism on Saturday was the swelling, Dr. Kerlan said. "I knew he could take the pain." the doctor said. But would the swelling mechanically interfere with his handling the ball?"

But an anti-inflammatory substance that Dr. Kerlan injected Saturday, plus whirlpool and ice treatment in Chamberlain's own me, reduced the swelling and, 15 minutes before the Lakers took the floor, Chamberlain proved he was ready by simply palming the ball.

Chamberlain, has been much maligned during his 13-year career that produced only one other championship, with the 1966-67

Philadelphia 75ers. "For a long time." Chamberlam said after the victory, "friends and fans of mine have had to put up with people saying Wilt can't win the big ones. Now maybe they will have a chance to walk in peace, like

Approached Privately

For the last three years, officials of the New York AC privately had epproached Sonsky about competing for the club. He was a world-class athlete, lived in the metropolitan area and was liked and respected. Sonsky was reluctant to accept the New York AC invitation at the time because he is Jewish, and he had heard reports about the club's discriminatory policies -practices that had received national attention during the controversial 1968 boycott of the club's indoor track meet at Madison Square Garden. Sonsky jeined several other area track clubs, but found himself spending more time pleading for promised expenses than traveling to major meets.

He spent $400 to fly to the West Coast for the national championships last summer. When his club stalled on paying expenses, Sonsky thought he would have to go to small claims court to recever his funds. This spring, Sonsky realized he lacked the personal finances and the time to fret over club

Quarry Outpoints Middleton In 10-Round Bout in London

WEMBLEY, England, May 9 (AP).—Jerry Quarry of Bell-flower, Calif., world No. 2 heavyweight contender, outpointed Larry Middleton of Baltimore tonight in a 10-round heavyweight

Quarry took the decision by the narrowest of margins as referee Harry Gibbs scored it in his favor, 49 1/4 points to 49. Quarry seemed to have trouble with Middleton's long reach, but was fit enough to eke out the decision. There were no knockdowns in the fight, which was a sur-

Lessons of England's Soccer Cup Defeat

miracle can prevent West Germany from eliminating England from the quarterfinals of the European Nations Soccer Cup on Saturday in West Berlin, Without a miracle, a victorious German team would then be favored to go all the way, for they would prob-ably host the rest of the tournsment. England had been ramed to host the matches, on the understanding that it qualified.

As the brilliant play against England at Wembley showed, there has been an astonishing change in West German soccer. The Germans, who took the firstleg match by 3-1, had traditionally played the same type of game as the British did muscular, efficient, straightforward, Their great players were such as Helmut Rahn, a bull of an outside-right who scored two goals when they won the final of the 1954 World Cup, and Uwe Seeler of SV Hamburg, a stocky, powerful centerforward who was a hero in Mexico two years ago.

All this has changed, in the image of Franz Beckenbauer, who is the most unexpected and extraordinary "sweeper" in the history of the strategy. Traditionally, as begun in Switzerland and depressingly continued in Italy, the sweeper can go on playing until he's almost 40, as Luisito Suarez of Spain is doing for Genoa's Sampdoria. He relies on his brains, his experience and his positional sense to block and cover the gaps behind his back four defenders.

Not so the elegant and versatile Beckenbauer, who at Wembley was upfield tormenting the English defense as much as he was back, reinforcing his own. In the Borussia Mönchengladbach star though the rivalry between the flamboyant Netzer and the modest Beckenbaner is well known, Add to this the deadly finishing of Gerd Mueller and the remarkably promising young front-runner, 20year-old Uli Hoeness, and England's task in Berlin seems titanie. The task is complicated by the fect that Sir. All Ramsey, the English manager, has been left behind by the evolution of the game. Desperate expedients such as fielding a midfield trio without a wing-half capable of winning the ball emphasize the fact. That cost England the game at Wembley. England will need to find new direction, new tactics, and "blood" new players if it is to do anything in the 1974 World Cup. In the Wembley game, Ramsey's luck ran out, and the whole rickety structure of his obsolescent team was exposed. Even Gordon Banks in the goal could not save them.

The other matches also are fescinating, if unpredictable. If West Germany's victory at Wembley was a good thing for soccer, as the Italian captain Giacinto Facchetti remarked, then so would the defeat of Italy by In Milan: the perennially disappointing Italian team was held to a scoreless tie by the Belgians, who may be expected to do better in Brussels. Italy's dreary, unadventurous methods, in which a sweeper is uncompromisingly a eper, are out of date. True, it was only a marvelous early save by Christian Plot, Belgium's goalkeeper, on Gigi Riva which changed the course of the game. Thereafter, bowever, hard Belgian tackling and canny posses-

West Germany's victory was that it showed that an away team

need not play for a negative

In the other matches, bright young Romania and revivified Russia, having both tied away games, should beat Hungary and Yugoslavia, respectively, at home -unless their opponents have absorbed the lessons of West Germany, and Wembley,

Voice of the People

By Russell Baker

You must be crazy, or a hippie, or possibly both. Only somebody of that ilk or worse could seriously make a proposal like yours that our Air Force ought to quit dropping bombs on our enemies in Vietnam and be used instead to dump our garbage on them. Who will want to serve in the Air Force if his mission is going to be no better than that of a garbage man? In these days when image is so important we ought to be doing everything in our power to make the joh of the Air Force even more glamorous. This cannot be done by forcing them to drop tons of halfeaten frozen TV dinners on the enemy, as you suggest, or even Hubert Humphrey, as you also seem to desire.

M. L. BRISKET.

Sir: As the wife of a garbage man, I find your column offensive and disgusting. Garbage may not be the sweetest product of the American system-although you Washington big shots probably enjoy making it just as much as the rest of us when there's a steak dinner going on the table—but at least it isn't used to kill innocent women and children. My husband's work may not smell good, but it is still respectable and vital to our nation's welfare, which is more than I can say for what happens in the air over Vietnam, and I want to keep it that way. You owe the American garbage man an apology. MRS. L. W. CHOMBLEY.

Your idea got me to thinking. Dropping garbage on Vietnam would be a short-sighted waste of precious organic materials and good deal of natural wealth that might be recycled. Why should Communists receive our American treasure, even if the idea does happen to be to kill them with ft? With compost as hard as it is to come by today,

WASHINGTON.—Today we let it would be little short of crimthe readers have their say: inal to let waves of B-52s dump it free on Hanoi, However, with a little selectivity, your basic idea could be very good. Suppose, for example, that our bombers dropped nothing but discarded chewing gum? Tons of it, all over the place. We could lay a carpet of chewing gum from Hanoi to the Mekong Delta. You can bet they'd come to the negotiating table then and give up.

AMBROSE DOXOLATER,

Your proposal for taking advantage of the Vietnam war to solve our garbage-disposal probcannot, unfortunately, be sold to the Pentagon in its present form. You seem to believe that the garbage could be simply put aboard scows, shipped to naval and air force bases, loaded aboard ships and bombers, and then shoved out onto Vietnam with pitchforks and shovels.

If the plan is to succeed, you must first persuade the Pentagon to undertake a crash program of research and development to test the feasibility of a devastating new G-bomb. Ten billion dollars later a deliverable weapon which the Air Force might not be ashamed to be photographed with would be ready for on-target delivery. It might strongly resemhle a galvanized-tin garbage can, but the price of it would be so extravagant that the Secretary of Defense himself would be proud to appear with it during its first television performance. Ten years might seem a long time to wait for your garbage-disposal program to go into effect, but in the present war it is but a drop in the bucket-or should I say the garbage can of time,

A DEWYNTER SHORTSALE.

I want you to be in my office at 10 a.m. tomorrow prepared to answer the question, "Who talked?" As you must have known, that garbage-bomb column involved a serious break of security. And remember, we heve ways of making you talk, Grand juries have been known to investigate, you know; columnists have been assigned to long tours with Hubert Humphrey. And don't print my name; it's classified.

Tennessee Williams

Outraged Puritan

By William Glover

NEW YORK (AP).—Tennessee Williams was talking slowly, softly and intently. The same man as before, but different. "When you've really had a mental crackup, it's a great catharsis of all the things that have troubled you. That is, if you survive it, and I barely did," he said, the words trailing off.

Williams's playwrighting, illness and emotional turmoil have, for a quarter-century, delighted, distressed and diverted multitudes. "I feel I have lived a full life," he said.

The dramatist last month passed his 61st birthday. His latest play, "Small Craft Warnings," was recently premiered.

Of the mixed critical reception that greeted the play (many reviewers com-plained that the characters were shorts from dramas past), he said: "What do they want, blood? At 61, I don't have blood to give. I gave them good writing, I achieved my purpose, which was to write a play that corresponded to a short story." In eppearance, Williams projects confidence. He has sworn off the more exotic medicaments he used to indulge in, has "two or three drinks and I'm a great lover of wine. I do get tired et night." He writes every morning.

But Williams has no intention of turning hermit. "My doctor told me I should go to Key West and live like a crocodile."
His arms paw the air in mime of a lethargic swamp dweller. "What was my answer? Well, I'm not doing it, am ??" Roar of leughter. The conversation frequently breaks for gleeful bursts.

"I have found again the ability to be surprised, which I lost during the 1960s. I feel much freer with people and I feel I have more friends." What has it all to do with the inner man, the creator whose lyrical imagerv has ever been strongly etched with burning compassion? Do demons of anguish still haunt him?

"Oh, you mean my neuroses. No, no, no, no, they don't any longer. I don't permit them to."

Has he found an anchor of serenity? "Well, I'll tell you one thing. I'm not afraid of death anymore. I used to be excessively afraid. Death doesn't frighten me. I have a great deal of longevity in my family, but I think in my particular instance that's going to be counteracted by this cardiae condition. I feel I have

"I have a major play that I have fin-ished, and I have other plays that I will possibly finish. They are things I've started and dropped,, going back several years except for one I began in Paris last fall. I like to have several works going at once. It would be awful to have nothing left to say." More laughter.

"If critics constantly compare my work with past performance, then it is because they are totally unacquainted with the history of most American writers. American writers frequently do their most spectacular work early in their career. If they've got any sense, and their work decimes, they quit.

'Now I've never felt my work has declined to that degree. I couldn't quit anyway, because writing is my greatest satisfaction in life. I have others, but writing is the greatest. Why should I quit?

"My mother thinks I should. My mother is 38. She pretended to like my writing for a while. Then she saw In the Bar of a Tokyo Hotel' and said, 'Son, you must find some different occupation.' I said, 'What would you suggest, mother?' And she was stuck for an answer." The conversation turns to his conversion several years ago to Roman Catholicism. 'Tm a very bad Catholic in some respects and very good in others. I almost never go to church. Actually, I prefer the High Anglican service. At heart, I'm very much a puritan. An outraged puritan."

It was his brother, Dakin, for 17 years an Army officer, who urged his religious switch and supervised hospital care when his health broke in 1967.

All that he writes hereafter for the stage, the euthor also vows, will first be done from the Broadway upon which he exploded with "The Glass Menagerie" in 1945. Two Pulitzer prizes and a dozen productions of other works over the next two decades solidified his artistic eminence. "I'm not going to go through the hell of e New York production again if I can help it. It's absolute hell.

"The producers of Small Craft Warnings' were exceptionally nice men. They did everything they could to make things easy for me, but still I was terrified. I have a pathological fear of failure, you see. Yes, yes, it has grown. It's reached a point now where I don't think it's worth trying in New York anymore." Britain's Paul Scoffeld has promised Williams to appear in "Out-Cry," the most recently completed drama. When that distinguished actor does e play, asserts the author, "you automatically get a rum of six months no matter what the notices

The London production is intended for next antumn. If it should prove popular and Scofield desires, Williams would then accede to a New York showing.

"Out-Cry." he clarifies, is an outgrowth of "Two Character Play" which he wrote before his breakdown, and which was tested in 1987 at London's Hampstead Club Theatre. "After I was released, I began reworking it and found it diverging e great deal. Because after all"-laugh-'I was no longer mentally deranged." The radical changes in social mores that have taken place since he began writing heve not, on balance, reassured Williams-about his homeland. Greater sexual freedom, youthful candor-'these things ere improvements, but I'm shocked by the deadening of sensibilities. "There has been the most eppalling coarsening of people's sensibilities. Why?

Because of My Lai and things like that. People think it's all right that these things happen. They have been blunted by the etrocities of ordinary life." He can even muse whether the poetic delicacy of "The Glass Menagerie" would be eppreciated as it was originally if it were a brand new play in 1972, "Tm tempted to wonder if it would," he said.

Oh to Be in England PEOPLE: Now That Woofa's Ther.

Today's shaggy dog story comes Mail. "The possibilities for from Sydney, Australia, with a further education . . inch. sequel yet to unroll in Berkshire, England. A while back Frederick Jones, a retired manufacturer who in Massachusetts." Another lives in the Sydney suburb of Killara, left his 7-year-old Australian silky, Woofs, in a boarding kennel for what he thought would be a three-day stay. However, when he went to pick up the dog Jones found that Woofa had accidentally been sent air freight to England on May 5 with a poodle and a parrot. Jones said yesterday in Sydney that "I will go to England and get my little. Woofs back if I have to." Some impediments to the reunion of Woofa and Jones: six months quarantine in Britain, one year of quarantine in Australia. Determined to find out what. was happening to his rabbits, eacher Josef Kiesling of Enzersdorf, Austria, instructed his pupils to write an essay on "What Did You Have for Sunday Lunch?" Robert Tupler wrote that for three Sundays straight his family had rabbit. According to UPL Robert's father, Karl, confessed to stealing the rabbits "because the first one tasted so delicious."

Bonn Treaty Vote Delayed a Week

By David Binder

MNN. May 10 (NYT) -Leaders of all four parties in the West German Bundestag agreed this evening to postpone a ratification vote for a week on the government's hitherto contested Eastern treaties in a deal that guarantees their safe passage in the lower house, authoritative sources said.

Sources representing both Chancelor Willy Brandt and the conservative opposition leader. Rainer C. Barzel, said the vote next Wednesday evening would definitely provide an overwhelming majority for Bonn's 1970 goodwill treaties with the South Union and Poland most evenly divided since April 27 between the governing coalition of Social Democrats and Free Democrats and the opposition alliance of the Christian Democratic Union and Christian day Mr. Barzel tried unsuccess fully to supplant Mr. Brandt in a no-confidence vote.

A tie was repeated today in a procedural vote on whether to delay the critical balloting on the Eastern treaties. The split 259-259, including 22 West Berlin deputies turned back the opposi-tion motion to postpone the es see ratification vote for the fourth.

time in the last week. As a result the Bundestag experienced a day of fencing with the prospect that a showdown vote on the treaties would come in the late evening hours. Mr. Barze I repeatedly demanded house this afternoon that if it DERE came to a showdown now his deputies would vote against the treatics.

Fatigue and Stress The coalition gradually rec-ognized that Mr. Barzel's pleas reflected not only his own perand night political stress, but also his need for time to persuade to go along with bipartisan ratitime by walking slack-shouldered out of the parliament when Foreign Minister Walter Scheel accused him of preferring to go to bed last night instead of stay-Ing up to carry through the bipartisan approach to the treaties leading to a vote today.

Defense Chief Says Navy Might Stop Soviet Ships

By Robert Siner
WASHINGTON, May 10 (HTT).—Defense Secretary Melvin
R. Laird warned today that the United States "will take ell necessary steps" to prevent supplies from reaching North Vietnam and indicated that American warships might stop vessels attempting to deliver supplies to that country.

Mr. Laird, in answer to a specific question at a nationally televised press conference as to whether he meant to leave the impression that the United States might stop Soviet ships trying to enter North Vietnamese ports, declared, "That is the impression I want to leave."

He told newsmen that there had been no evidence as yet of any Soviet attempt at minesweeping operations or of major movements by vessels to leave or enter North Vietnamese ports. However, he did reveal that a Soviet freighter, which had been scheduled to enter Haiphong yesterday, was still "standing out to sea beyond territorial waters."

During the long session with newsmen, the defense secre-tary attempted to paint an optimistic picture of the situation hi Vietnam, stating that the Saigon forces were "holding fast in very difficult ground combat."

He also said that withdrawal of American troops would continue on schedule with American forces in Vietnam decreasing to 49,000 hy July 1.

Concerning the ground fighting, the defense secretary told newsmen that the South Vietnamese had difficulty during the first few days but later found "they could do a very good job." He conceded that in some cases the Saigon forces had not performed as well as they should but added that in most cases they have acted in a "very creditable fashion." Mr. Laird pointed out that only

A Hanoi broadcast said U.S. planes attacked the Soviet cargo ship Pavek yesterday in North Vietnamese waters, causing heavy damage and wounding four crewmen A Pentagon spokesman in Washington said 'no ships were targeted" by U.S. planes. But he added that in the mineseeding operations yesterday there was heavy firing between U.S. planes and North Vietnamese ground installations and the spokesman did not rule out the possibility the Soviet vessel could have been caught in crossfire. Another Hanoi broadcast said a U.S. destroyer was set afire by coastal guns while it shelled Haiphong today. Hanoi claimed two other destroyers were set aftre off Haiphong vesterday.

The U.S. command in Saigon announced the massive air strikes on North Vietnam and said more are in store, Today's raids were made on rail and fuel storage sites "in the vicinity" of Hanoi and Heiphong, the command said, It did not pinpoint the distances of the targets from the two cities.

Other sources said earlier the attacks also hit at North Vietnam's northwest railway 60 miles from the border of China,

"These strikes were made in pursuance of orders to reduce to the maximum extent possible the flow of military supplies in support of the massive Communist invasion across the Demilitarized Zone," the U.S. command said. "It is anticipated that air strikes and naval gunfire will continue to be used against military targets in North Vietnam to deny the enemy weapons and supplies it needs to continue the attack." Hanoi dispatches said nine U.S.

planes were shot down around Hanol, three at Haiphong, two over Yen Bai Province near China and two more over Hai Hung Province.

Growing protests swirled on city streets and college campuses last night as anti-war demonstrators by the thousands denounced resident Nixon's decision to mine North Vietnamese harbors. It was the most turbulent outburst since the 1970 protests over the U.S. invasion of Cambodia. Most of the demonstrations started peacefully yesterday or early today, but a number ended with violence and vandalism. Police in Berkeley, Calif., fired putty bullets from squad cars in a running battle with windowsmashing demonstrators near the University of California campus. Protesters on the University of California campus at Santa Barbara tried unsuccessfully to set fire again to a bank burned down in the 1970 violence.

—Sen, George McGovern has defeated Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey in their Nebraska primary and Sen. Humphrey walloped Gov. George C. Wallace to score what he termed "a truly magniflcent and great victory" in West Virginia.

" I have a strong and growing hunch this will be a big victory for us," Sen. McGovern told his Nebraska supporters in Omaha by telephone from Washington shortly before returns from Lincoln and rural areas gave him victory in the clearest test between the two Democratic presidential hopefuls before their June 6 California contest.

The Russians might also attempt to airlift supplies to Hanoi, but intelligence specialists say that it would be difficult to bring in more than token numbers of surface to air missiles and tanks this way. If the traffic became very heavy, the airfields probably would be bombed—at times when Russian planes were not present, military sources suggested.

PARIS, May 10 (AP).-Martin J. Hillenbrand, a key aide of Secretary of State William P. Rogers and a planner of President Nixon's Moscow visit, flew here today from Bonn to continne European talks in Mr. Rogers's place.

Mr. Hillenbrand left aboard a U.S military plane three days after Mr Rogers flew to Washington for Vietnam crisis talks. Mr. Rogers broke off a scheduled eight-nation tour of consultations with European governments on issues involved with Mr. Nixon's Moscow summit. A US. Embassy spokesman here said today that Mr. Hillenbrand, assistant secretary of state for European affairs, will meet French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann today. Asked if Mr. Hillenbrand would also see Vietnam peace negotiators in the French capital, the spokes-man said he did not know. He added the State Department official will fly to Rome tomorrow and Madrid the same night for talks with Italian and Spanish Foreign Ministry repre-

Tells of Her Departure From San Francisco

SAN JOSE, Calif., May 10 (AP). -An airline ticket agent testified yesterday that Angela Davis rushed to catch a plane out of San Francisco three hours after shootings in nearby Marin County had claimed four lives.

Marcia Brewer said she sold Miss Davis a ticket to Los Angeles on Aug. 7, 1970, about two minutes before a 2 p.m. flight was scheduled to depart.

"She came up to me in a hur-ry... I noticed that she was fumbling in her purse and took out her checkbook," Miss Brewer said. She added that she made out a ticket, checked Miss Davis's identification and watched her run toward the boarding area. She said the flight left late, at 2:20 p.m., giving Miss Davis time to get aboard.

Meanwhile in Sacramento, Soledad Brother John Clutchette was granted parole yesterday, effective next Nov. 13, the Califor-

In 1970, a few months before his scheduled release, he was charged along with two other black inmates, George Jackson and Fleeta Drumgo, with the murder of a white guard at Soledad Prison. The three then became known as the Soledad Brothers. Earlier this year a San Fran-cisco jury acquitted Chrichette and Drumgo.

Drungo is in San Quentin serving a two-to-15-year sentence for burgiary. He also faces trial in connection with the alleged escape attempt last August in which George Jackson was killed.

- United Mine Workers president W. A. (Tony) Boyle and two other UMW officials appeared today before a federal grand jury investigating the 1969 murders of union insurgent Joseph A. (Jock) Yablonski and his wife and daughter.

Two more UMW officials were expected to testify before the same grand jury later. The union figures were not subpoensed, but "invited" appear. There was no official comment on why Boyle, 67, was testifying. But reliable government sources said questioning centered on a special $20,000 UMW fund allegedly set up to pay for the Yablonski killings. Boyle's appearance followed those of Wayne Channell, assistant to John Owens, secretarytreasurer of the UMW, and William Turnblazer, president of the UMW's District 19, beadquartered in Middlesboro, Ky. Democrats Call on Senate To Order More ITT Hearings

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AF).
-Three Demograts on the Senate Judiciary Committee are urging the Senate to order further hearings on Richard G. Kleindienst's nomination as attorney general before voting on his confirmation. "The Senate must decide whether or not it is going to be a party to a whitewash," Sen. Birch Bayh, D., Ind., Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D., Mass., and Sen. John V. Tunney, D., Calif., said in a minority report dissenting from the committee's recommendation that Mr. Kleindienst be confirmed. "It is shameful that we have been cut off before the job is they said yesterday in declaring that all the relevant witnesses have not been heard. The committee voted 11-4 on April 27 to reaffirm its support of Mr. Kleindienst's nomination after 22 days of hearings on charges that settlement of antitrust cases against International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. was part of a political deal .

The investigation was under-taken at Mr. Kleindienst's request after publication of a memo purportedly written by lobbyist Dita D. Beard linking the settlement to an ITT pledge of up to $400,000 to underwrite this year's Republican National Convention. The three senators said that the committee really does not know enough to be able to con-clude with confidence that Kleindienst did or did not know about the ITT gift" "He says he didn't." their minority report said, "but his 'didn'ts' just have not stood the test of time. He does admit to constant who might have told him, but we are unable to get the testimony of those aides." The report of the committee majority, filed last week, concluded that "the settlement was reached on the merits after arm's length negotiations" and was "not the product of political influence Prosecutor Richard A Spra gue, in charge of presenting the state's case against the seven defendants arrested thus far in the killings, said last week that the $20,000 represented the money used to pay for the slayings. Mr. Yablonski, 59; his wife Margaret, 57, and their 25-year-old daughter Charlotte were shot to death at their home in Clarksville, Pa., Dec. 31, 1969. Three weeks earlier, Mr. Yablonski had lost a bid to unseat Boyle as president of the UMW and was about to appeal before a federal grand jury probing union activities. Two men have been convicted of shooting the three Yabion-skis, while two others—both District 19 officials recently were arrested in the case. Last week, a federal jury set aside Boyle's 1969 election, charging Boyle with violating labor regulations. Earlier, Boyle had been convicted of filegally using union funds for political activities. He has denied any con-nection with Mr. Yablonski's

Easier Charter Rules on Flights Inside U.S. Urged

WASHINGTON, May 10 (WP) -Liberalized airline charter regulations—offering inexpensive vacation tours-should be tried experimentally within the United States, the Department of Transportation urged yesterday.

· Under DOTe proposal, airlines would be able to offer "one inclusive tour charter flights. The current government regulation for inclusive tour charters requires et least three stops 50 miles apart, a restriction which charter airlines say has virtually killed its usefulness.

The recommendation was made by Robert H. Binder, deputy assistant secretary for policy and international affairs, before the Aviation Subcommittee of the Senate Commerce Committee.

Testifying before the same subcommittee, an economic analyst for the charter airlines said that a weeklong "inclusive tour" including air fare and hotel accommodations in Orlando Fla starting from Washington, D.C., would cost less than $110. Membership in a group for the charter flights, travel agents could charter the planes to sell tours to individual vacationers.

Low charter fares reflect savings made by flying planes with a 100-percent "load factor" (all seats occupied by passengers). The average load factor on U.S. domestic scheduled flights last year was below 50 percent.

He also said be did not condone their actions but agreed to support their protest because they were "well disciplined young men" who had planned an orderly demonstration. Mr. Agnew's letter said the demonstrators "employed the grossest obscenities and destroyed public and personal property." He added:

"Their illegal actions were in no way compatible with this country'e tradition of lawful dissent, and they deserved the censure of all public officials irrespective of agreement or disagreement with the subject matter of their protest." Asked if the bedspread could have come from some prankster. the Agnew spokesman said. "Definitely not.

Another Claimant

Later today, A.J. (Tony) Petropulos, who was born in the same area in Greece as Mr. Agnew's father, surfaced as the donor of a bedspread for the Vice-President.

Mr. Petropulos, 89, who spent 28 years on the Lewiston, Me., police force and is former county GOP chairman, said he bought a "George Washington" style bedspread and planned to give it to Mr. Agnew when the Vice-President appeared at the GOP convention. But Mr. Petropulos said someone took the box from him before he attended a VIP reception for Mr. Agnew, presumably a Secret Service agent, as is the customary practice.

Asked if Mr. Petropulos' account didn't clear np the matter, a secretary in Mr. Agnew's office quoted one of his aides as saying he "wasn't aware of any Greeks bearings gifts" on the Maine trio.

Mr Nixon's Brinkmanship

In ordering the closing of land and sea Supply routes to North Vietnam by American military action, President Nixon is taking a desperate gamble that alters the entire nature of the war, that risks the fundamental security and deepest interests of the United States for dubious and tenuous gains, and that runs counter both to congressional mandate and to the will and conscience of a large segment of the American people.

The mining of the harbors of North Vietnam poses a direct challenge to the Soviet Union and other arms suppliers to Hanoi that could quite possibly escalate into a confrontation between the world's two great soperpowers. Only the gravest threat to the security of the United States could justify such a challenge, as was indeed the case in the Cuban missile crisis. But Vietnam is not Cuba; and there is no conceivable American interest at stake in Indochina today as there was in Cuba to warrant the risk-and the escalation-the President has so clearly undertaken.

Let us grant that the North Vietnam Communists are infuriatingly—even insultingly intransigent in the negotiations at Paris and are stubbornly aggressive in the field, as indeed they are. Let us grant that the United States still has a commitment to support to the death the present Saigon government as representative of Sooth Vietnamese democracy—a commitment which, if it ever existed, has surely been long ago fulfilled. Let us even grant-contrary to fact—that President Nixon's Vietnamization program has been a success and that all that is needed is a little more time and a Tew more arms to bring Hanoi's belligerence to a halt. Granting all these hypotheses, what possible good could President Nixon's present escalation-cum-confrontation accomplish?

Even if the closing of the ports by mining and the interdiction of land routes by renewed extensive bombing should succeed in their goals without retaliation by the Soviet Union and China, the resultant cutoff in supplies could not materially affect the outcome of the present North Vietnam offensives in the South.

In any case, the bulk of North Vietnam's military supplies enter not from the sea but from China via road and rail. The entire history of deep interdiction of supply routes, from World War II to the present, demonstrates its ineffectuality. At most, therefore, Mr. Nixon's orders would simply tend to move Soviet supplies back to the trans-China route and shift the balance of influence in Hanoi a little more toward Peking.

This semi-blockade policy is both spurious and impractical; and it is difficult to understand how the President and his advisers, given the history of this war, can genuinely believe in it either. But to explain it, as the President did in his television address Monday night, as a means of protecting the American troops still remaining in Vietnam strains credulity to the breaking point. In fact, it is painfully obvious that Mr. Nixon's escalation of the conflict, including the stepped-up bombing of the North in reprisal for the Northern successes in the South, only increases the peril of American ground troops in Vietnam while obviously raising with every air raid the potential number of American prisoners held by Hsnoi.

The President's risky action evidently signals a decision to intensify and enlarge American military involvement in the war from sea and air, with all the attendant risks accompanying soch escalation. The President is in fact leading the country down precisely the road—though by different means—that President Johnson did in 1965. The difference is that President Nixon has the benefit of these last seven years' experience. Yet, like the Bourbons, he seems to have forgotten nothing and learned

Even the peace offer included in Mr. Nixon's speech has a specious ring to it. He tells Hanoi that if it agrees to an internationally supervised cease-fire and returns the American prisoners, the United States "will stop all acts of force throughout Indochina" and will be out of Vietnam "within four months." On the face of it, this sounds as though Mr. Nixon were at last cutting all ties with the Saigon government, for there is no mention of any political condition whatsoever. But given Hanoi's present military successes, there is little incentive to North Vietnam to accept a cease-fire now: and while Mr. Nixon specifically promises American withdrawal from Vietnam within a short period, he does not promise withdrawal from the neighboring states, leaving the implied threat of American force and American power still hanging over the peninsula.

By his rash and precipitate action, President Nixon is not only risking military confrontation with the Soviet Union over an issue that is not and never has been vital to the security interests of the United States; he is also risking the almost equally dangerous collapse of the painfully built progress toward a genuine diplomatic détente, as it is already taking form in the SALT agreements and would surely be further advanced hy the now threatened Moscow summit con-

By his action, President Nixon is also inviting Soviet retaliation, if not in East Asia, then in other sensitive parts of the globe. By his action, he is unwittingly encouraging the Soviet hawks. By his action. he is incurring the possible speedy dissolution of the thin and delicate relationship just painfully constructed with Peking. By his action as well as his rhetoric, he has dug the United States deeper into the hole from which it had for four years been trying to extricate itself in Indochina.

And by his action he has clearly defied the Congress if not the Constitution. This may turn out to be the most dangerous of all the ominous aspects of Mr. Nixon's present course. The Congress of the United States last year resolved that it was "the policy of the United States to terminate at the earliest possible date all military operations of the United States in Indochina ... " Mr. Nixon said at the time that the resolution was without binding force or effect and it does "not reflect my judgment about the way... in which the war should be brought to a conclusion."

But now Mr. Nixon has in effect defied the expressed will of the Congress by replying to North Vietnamese escalation with more escalation—an old, familiar and demonstrably useless course of action. His dangerous and unnecessary resort to semi-blockade and massive bombing in a futile search for military victory in an undeclared war republiace by a large section of the American people can only weaken the country internally and discredit it abroad :

The only recourse now is in the hands of Congress. It still has the constitutional power to curb and control the executive. While it is an extremely distasteful action. under the circumstances Congress still can regain its proper authority by exercising its power of the purse along the general lines of the Church-Case amendment in the Senate. It can shut off funds for all further military operations after return of the prisoners and after a certain date, either in Indochina as a whole or, as a more limited restraint, above the North Vietnam pan-

Mr. Nixon is pushing the country very near to a constitutional crisis; Congress can yet save the President from himself and the nation from disaster.

Italy's Unresolved Dilemma

Italy's elections do not seem to have produced any basic change in that country's situation. When it comes to forming a viable government the politicians will find themselves confronted with the same old problems: Keeping the Socialist party from joining forces with the Communists; the social and administrative "reforms" which the left is determined to push through regardless of economic reality; the difficulty of getting such a wide range of parties (and movements within parties) to pursue a somewhat uniform course. -From the Neue Zuercher Zeitung (Zurich).

Nixon's Gamble

Mr. Nixon has spelled oot his deal for peace and backed it with perllous action. He wants to be re-elected President and must feel that he can carry the American people with him. It is the final act in the great American tragedy. The President is gambling on the understanding of the Russians. He is gambling on the mercy and magnanimity of the North Vietnamese Communists in their hour of victory.

The President's Offer

By James Reston

NEW YORK.—So much has been said about President Nixon's new military moves in Vietnam that his new and more specific peace terms may be overlooked and underestimated. For while he talked in warrior language about the "arrogance" and insolence of Hanoi, and backed his warnings with a military challenge to the seaborne Soviet arms in Haiphong and the rail supplies from China, he also offered what amounts to a datecertain for the "complete withdrawal of all American forces from Vietnam within four

Maybe, at this solemn hour, it may be more useful to concentrate on his peace terms rather than on his war plans. He has been more specific this time than ever before:

"Second, there must be an internationally supervised cease-fire throughout Indochina Inot merely Vietnam].

"Once prisoners of war are released, ooce the internationally supervised cease-fire has begun. we will stop all acts of force throughout Indoching.

"And at that time we will proceed with a complete withdraw-al of all American forces from Vietnam within four months... [This] would allow negotiations and a political settlement between the Vietnamese themselves ... "

Well, maybe this is looking for a very thin ray of light in the dark, but there is nothing here about keeping American air and naval power in Vietnam, or defending the Thieu government to the end-Nixon never mentioned Thieu_or relying on elections. The military offer is specific: Release the American prisoners, agree to a supervised cease-fire, new "generation of peace."

and then, within four months, "a complete withdrawal of all American forces from Vietnam... and a political settlement between the Vietnamese themselves ..."

This, obviously, leaves some serious questions for both sides, When could the cease-fire begin? If this took a long time to arrange. Hanoi would lose its military momentum and give Salgon and Washington room to regroup resupply. If the cease-fire were arranged quickly, Washington and Saigon would be committed to take the prisoners of war quickly and get all American forces out in four months. There are risks on both sides, but at least Nixon has suggested a serious and specific basis for negotistions, which may be more hopeful for him and for Hand, Moscow and Peking than his mines in Haiphong, his bombs oo the Peking-Hanoi railroad, and his exaggerated talk about the immediate threat to the 60,000 of the Republic and the peace of the world.

The problem now is to cool the rhetoric, cut the challenges, end the killing and find some way out of the mess. Nixon sounds very brave and he has taken some terrible risks, for the geography is all on the side of the enemy, and if his mining of the North Vietnamese harbors succeeds, all he will do with his challenges is to force Moscow and Peking together to ship more arms by air or rail from the Soviet Union through China to Hancl,

The more he talks about "the Communist terror and tyranny," and gives Moscow and Peking three days to get out of Haiphong before the American mines explode, the more he will reunite the two Communist giants and interfere with his dream of a

Somehow I wish this message could be emblazoned across the sky for all those to read who still believe that America is there to protect democracy and plant justice and equity in the soil of the land.

It is probably still inconceivable to most Americans that anything resembling justice could flourish under Communism, but one doesn't have to be very old to remember when it was just as inconceivable that any injustice and wholesale

Still, Nixon has given everybody, including himself, an escape from this dilemma with his latest peace proposals. They are fair enough to be placed before the United Nations for debate. The secretary-general of the UN has indicated his willingness to bring the issue before the world peace organization, and this, poor as it is, could be better than the confrontation of mines and arms in Haiphong.

President Nixon, in his speech to the nation, tough as he sounded, gave Hanoi, Moscow and Peking a more realistic basis for compromise than ever before, and at least his new peace proposals should be tested before his risky military maneuvers create a world crisis.

The other case less so, and (without wholeheartedly endorsing it) I give it as it was given recently to the Committee of the Judiciary of the House of Representatives by Prof. Ernest van den Haag, under whose thinking cap groweth no moss. Mr. van den Haag, a professor of social philosophy at New York University, ambushed the most popular arguments of the abolitionists, taking no prisoners.

1. The business about the poor and the black suffering excessively from capital punishment is no argument against capital punishment. It is an argument against the administration of tustice, not against the penalty. Any punishment can be unfairly or unjustly applied. Go ahead and reform the processes by which capital punishment is inflicted, if you wish; but don't confuse maladministration penalty is "unusual" is circular... Capital punishment continues on the books of a majority of states, the people continue to sanctioo the concept of capital punishment, and indeed capital sentences are routinely handed down. What has made capital punishment "un-usual" is that the courts and, primarily, governors, have intervened in the process so as to collaborate in the frustration of the execution of the law. To argue that capital punishment is unusual, when in fact it has been made unusual by extra-legislative authority, is an argument to expedite, not eliminate, executions.

3. Capital punishment is cruel, That is a historical judgment, But the Constitution suggests that what can be regarded as cruel is a) a particularly painful way of inflicting death, or b) a particularly undeserved death; and the death penalty, as such, meets neither of these criteria and cannot be therefore regarded as objectively "cruel." Viewed the other way, the question is whether capital punish-ment can be viewed as useful, and the question of deterrence arises. 4. Those who believe that the death penalty does not intensify the disinclination to commit certain crimes need to wrestle with statistics that disclose that, in fact, it can't be proved that any punishment does that to any particular crime. One would rationally suppose that two years in jail would cut the commission of a crime if not exactly by 100 percent more than one year in fail, at least that it would further discourage crime to a certain extent.

LONDON, May 10 (UPI) .-- A ast-ditch bid by Employment Minister Maurice Macmillan to head off a threatened resumption of a nationwide railroad slowdown failed tonight.

Leaders of all three rail unions announced after three hours of talks in Mr. Macmillan'e office with officials of state-run British Rail that no progress toward a settlement had been made and the slowdown would begin as scheduled at midnight tomorrow. Mr. Macmillan-called the talks after branding the unions in Parliament as bullies.

Big Belfast Department Store Destroyed by Bomb and Fire

March.

BELFAST, May 16 (UPI) .-- A 50-pound bomb tore through Belfast's main department store today, injuring several persons and sparking a huge fire in the center of the city.

Police said 25 persons, many of them women; were taken to the hospital suffering from cuts and shocks. No serious injuries were reported.

Billows of smoke spread over the city as firemen from towns as far away as 30 miles came to try to halt the blaze in the Belfast Cooperative Store before it spread to adjoining buildings. The blaze was brought under control more than two hours after the explosion that started it. The store was a blackened, gutted hulk. Fire officials estimated the loss at £2 million.

Blest on 3d Floor The explosion went off in the paint department on the third floor of the five-story store on York Street.

Fire officials said they believed the blaze was the biggest single fire in the history of the It spread quickly through the store, which occupies two city blocks, and was racing out of control less than an hour after the blast.

A bomb warning was telephoned to a Belfast newspaper before the explosion - but police said there was not time enough to evacuate the building.

The bomb blew out most of the store's front, sent goods flying for blocks around, and knocked out windows in buildings across the street.

It was early closing day for businesses in Belfast, and the store was shut when the bomb went off. About 50 persons, some in tears and others screaming, were led from the building after the blast

The blast ended nearly 2 week of comparative daytime peace in Belfast'e city center; most of the recent explosions have occurred during the night.

It was the second time the Belfast Co-op has been the target of terrorist bombers. Two months ago part of the store was closed several days because of a similar blast.

Elsewhere in Northern Ireland there were scattered incidents of

A bomb planted in a car damaged a dozen stores in Omagh, 60 miles west of Belfast, and slightly injured a soldier, an army spokesman said.

At Strabane, 14 miles southwest of Londonderry, and in the nearby town of Sion Mills, British troops used rubber bullets to disperse crowds of rock-throwing youths. One soldier was hit by a missile and required hospital

In Belfast's Springfield Road area, a gunman fired 10 shots at a two-vehicle army patrol near the "peace line" separating Protestant and Roman Catholic areas. One soldier was wounded in the arm, an Army spokesman said.

Outside of Dungiven, 20 miles south of Londonderry, several guntuen opened fire on an Ulster Defense Regiment patrol, wound-ing one of the soldiers in the arm. He managed to return fire the army said.

Turkey Replies To Burtons on Arrested Actor

ANKARA, May 10 (AP).-The Turkish government today cabled Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton assuring them that Yilmaz Guney, a star of Turkish films now held by martial-law authorities, would be given full legal protection.

The Burtons recently cabled the Turkish premier asking for clemency for Mr. Guney, whom they called "an outstanding artist." They believed that he had been sentenced to death for alleged aid to Turkish terrorists. In its answer, the Ankara government said that Mr. Guney is being held in Istanbul while "charges of complicity with and support for a terrorist organization are being investigated."

A Turkish official said that he

Mrs. de Gaulle Declines Lunch With the Queen

PARIS, May 10 (AP) .-Queen Elizabeth II has expressed a desire to see Mrs. Charles de Gaulle during the British sovereign's visit to France next week but Mrs. de Gaulle has declined, informants said today.

The queen was said to have suggested through British Ambassador Sir Christopher Soemes that Mrs. de Gaulle and she have lunch at the embassy.

The informants said that Mrs. de Gaulle sent her deep thanks to the queen but said that she would prefer not to make an exception to her rule to remain in total retirement since Gen. de Gaulle's death.

Lebanon Premier Resigns But Is Likely to Return

BEIRUT, May 10 (Reuters).-Lebanon's Premier Saeb Salam, today handed in his government's resignation to President Suleiman Franjieh and said it had been accepted.

Mr. Salam said last week he would offer his resignation now that the Lebanese general elections are over. The government is not bound by the constitution to do so, but it has been a tradition that governments whire supervised elections resign after they are over. Mr. Franjich is expected to ask Mr. Salam to torm a new government.

The polls were held in three stages to elect the 99 members of Lebanon's single house of parliament. They ended on April

Your Captain wishes you a pleasant flight.

To most people, a BEA Captain is a friendly voice over the aircraft address system.

But there's a few things your Captain. has to do before he speaks to you. Let's take them in order.

First, he has to spend two years at flying school, followed by six months at the BEA Training School, where he 'flies' 80 hours on the Flight Simulator. Then he begins service-as a Second Officer. About four years later, he'll be a First Officer.

Nine or ten years after that-if he's really good, and we don't make it easy-lie can become a BEA Captain.

Before each take-off from London, he has a 30-minute briefing and passes it on to his crew. He's responsible for exhaustive checks of the plane and personnel-164 dials in the Trident cockpit alone. He takes off.

of toy stores that stock a broad assortment of Several of these are in the Rue dn Fanbourg Montmartre area, a district popular with foreign tourists. They have been laying in new stocks of astonishing or side-splitting merchandise in anticipation of the new season. A box, for instance, that when opened discloses an amputated thum (really your own), slipped in the bottom and encased in what looks like bloody cotton. Enorge mous, grotesque slip-on hands and feet, made of very lifelike rubber. Plastic gums with huge burk teeth attached. A big assortment of take spiders small green worms (for enlivening salads) and a wind-up tarantula, a bit smaller than a temps ball which scuttles very convincingly.

There are also such staple items as exploding cigars and cigarettes, itching and sneezing powder sugar that won't melt in your coffee and spoon that will. There are chocolates made of leather and walnuts that speak when squeezed. One shor offers a wide range of false beards and mustacher such as the Charmeur (thin mustache and black Van Dyck) and the Bureaucrat (rather aggressive looking, with tightly curled ends).

One of the more devilish products on display is a small snifter half full of cognac. The short assistant offers you a nip, you put it to your line tiff it up and nothing happens: The which swirls about quite realistically, is sealed between two glass shells. An ideal party offering you'd think, for a guest who has had one to many.

Another hot item this season is a jar of mustard, bearing the label of a well-known Dijor company, that when opened releases a shrisking snake about three feet long. As one might expec in France there is a big variety of diabolicals subverted food items rolls, boxes of Camembert jars of preserves—all of them guaranteed to tarrify or dismay the unwary.

One of the customers, who was also an Amer icen, followed a moment later and found the portly man leaning against the pub's wall, convulsed with laughter. When he had recovered sufficiently, he said, wiping his eyes: "The look on their faces. It kills me every time."

He was a businessman, in England on a buying trip, and also a compulsive practical joker. The TV set was just what it seemed to be: a tiny, battery-powered Japanese product. The phone with cord attached, was a wind-up plastic gadget; you activate the bell mechanism by pressing a button with your elbow. The pad of pound notes he had made himself by aligning them carefully and gluing them at one end.

Explaining all this set him off again and, when last seen he was leaning against the wall, shaking ONDON, May 10 (UPI).—Net thetic fibers, chemicals, food me for the Royal Dutch/- products and pharmaceuticals firm were up 8 percent at 2.065 billion guilders from the 2.003 billion in the 1971 quarter.

Share carnings dipped to 1.84 guilders from 193 last year with more shares outstanding now than a year ago.

The company said that firstquarter results were affected by deteriorating prices in the synthetic fiber sector as well as the international monetary problems. J. R. M. van den Brink, president of AKZO's board, referring to the problems in the synthetic fibers field, said: "This sector of our business is battered by overcapacity, deteriorating prices, the closure of plants and dismissals. At the same time, however, the company has to face fines for infringing cartel laws, which are meant to protect the community, he complained.

If the group is "to maintain its international position in a number of world markets, the net earnings must show a substantial rise. Only then will we keep access to the international capital market and only then will we be able to keep our capital expenditures at the desired level."

Another cause of AKZO's problems, he remarked, was the mon-etary crisis, which is especially harmful for the Netherlands and West Germany, where some of the group's biggest plants are

Solvay Earns Less

BRUSSELS, May 10 (Reuters). -Solvay & Cie, consolidated net profit declined 6.1 percent last vest to a provisional 1.95 billion Belgian: francs (about $43.4. million).

Group sales advanced to a provisional 45.23 billion francs from 42.02 billion in 1970.

The chemical company attributed the lower profit to cost inflation due to a steady increase in salaries and more expensive raw materials. This was aggrevated by exchange rate modifi-cations, which could not be offset by increased productivity, officials

Solvay said group sales would have risen by 12 percent despite the poor economic climate last year, but currency fluctuations reduced the annual increase to

IBM Develops Solar Cell

Development of a new type of solar cell that is far more efficient than existing ones in converting similight to electricity was announced by researchers at International Business Machines. The new solar cell is particularly attractive as a: power source in space and "may mark a big step toward large-scale use of solar cells for direct conversion of sunlight into electrical power," IBM said. The cell is capable of converting into electricity 18 percent or more of the energy of the sunlight that strikes it IBM said. Older solar cells typically are 11 to 13 percent efficient, although some have gotten as high as 14 percent. (As a rough comparison, steam power plants are about 40 percent efficient in converting the energy of coal into electricity.) The IBM cell can operate at higher temperatures than older cells and is more resistant to electron and proton radiation Sumitomo Pharmaceutical Plans Taisho Pharmaceutical of Japan has reached agreement with Sumitomo Chemical Co. and Sumitomo Shoji Kaisha for a capital and business tie-up through an exchange of shareholdings. The two Sumitomo companies and Sumitomo Bank are expected to obtain a total of 10 million shares, or 10 percent, of Taisho from its president Shokichi Uehara and his family who own 65 percent. The main purpose of the tie-up is to utilize mutual sales networks in domestic and overseas markets as well as to promote joint development of new products, the companies say.

Siemens Expects Improvement

Stemens expects its earnings position will improve following a weakening of the cost explosion, the company's executive board chairman Bernhard Plettner says, Since Sept. 30, the close of its fiscal year, the company has reduced its labor force to 301,000 from around 307,000. In the six months to the end of March. incoming orders rose by about 5 percent with price increases accounting for about 3 to 4 percent of this rise. Orders in hand exceed current turnover by about 1 billion deutsche marks, Mr. Plettner again forecast that gross turnover this year will rise by about 10 percent to more then 16 billion DM. He says that Siemens plans to build up its production capacity abroad and intends to increase investments in Belgium, Prance, Italy, Austria, Greece, Turkey and Por-

Worst of Dollar Crisis Over, Emminger Tells Bankers

By Hobart Rowen

MONTREAL, May 10 (WP) .- ment except for the generaliza-Otmar Emminger, deputy director of the Bundesbank, said today that European central banks be-lieve that the worst of the dollar crisis has been passed, and that the Smithsonian agreement on exchange rates "is worthwhile defending and will be defended."

Mr. Emminger gave an optimistic appraisal for the future of the world's monetary system at a briefing following the opening ssion of an international mone tary conference here.

Attending are the key men from more: than 100 of the largest banks in 20 Western countries, meeting with a score of government officials for private discussions of money and trade problems. The sessions are closed but the participants make their views known to reporters.

This is the 19th annual conference, originally hosted by the American Bankers Association. but since 1970 organized and managed by 115 member banks themselves.

Mr. Emminger's comments were made in the course of a clash at the press conference with Chicago University economist Milton Friedman, who had participated with Mr. Emminger on a panel discussing international monetary reform.

Mr. Friedman said that the Smithsonian agreement was a "facade" made necessary because central bankers exist on the crises created by fixed exchange rates "Truly floating rates are not feasible." Mr. Friedman said, "because (that) would put world central bankers out of business." He predicted that the world will now be left with "an untidy system" with frequent and smaller changes in exchange rates. "It's hard to see the Smithsonian agreement as some-thing important," the economist

However, Mr. Emminger—one of the most influential of the European central bankers and himself an economist—reported that since March 1 the major European countries had received no further significant inflow of

In a brief interview later, Mr. Emminger added that U.S. pay-ments on the official reserves basis were probably close to a balance for the first quarter of the year. He said that this shows that exchange markets

In addition, the company said it earned an extraordinary income of $3.2 million; or 3 cents a share, from the sale of its mterest in Hajoca Corp., which it was required to divest under an anti-trust consent decree.

The first-quarter gains reflected continued strength from ITT's European manufacturing and service activities and an improvement in the U.S. economy, particularly affecting such areas as financial services, domestic manufacturing, car rentals and insurance, chairman Harold Geneer

TTT plans to make initial public offerings of stock this year in companies to be divested under the consent decree entered into last year with the Justice Department, Mr. Geneen gave no details and no indication of the timing of the offerings, but said: These sales will improve the company's financial strength, give us a basis for increased internal growth, and should show a substantial profit on the divest-

Brokers noted that the upswing could have been greater except for the fact that many investors and institutions remained cautious and did not participate in the market.

This was clearly evidenced by the slow trading pace, which fell to 13.87 million shares from 19.91 million the day before.

CEA Chief Forecasts Good Year for Profits

WASHINGTON, May ONYT).—The new flurry of enforcement actions by the Price Commission—some involving price roll-backs—does not mean any change in the administration's desire for "a good year for profits," the chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers said yesterday.

Herbert Stein told a meeting in New York that the "administration was well aware that not only our present recovery but also our future productivity and prosperity depend on reasonable prospects for earning profits that cover the costs and risks of investment." He added: country can count on

Most of the blue chips and the glamour issues led the up-swing. In the blue chip category, which represents a sizable portion of the industrial average, Eastman Kodak rose 2 5/8 to 118 3/8, IBM climbed 4 1/2 to 383 3/4, Du Pont rose 1 to 181 3/4 and PPG Industries jumped 1 5/8 to 46 3/4.

A late block of 286,500 shares of CIT Financial pushed that issue to the top of the most active list, closing off 1/8 at 45 1/4. Gulf Oil was second most active, thanks to a block of 200,000 shares, and was unchanged at 24 1/2. Other heavily traded issues included Public Service Electric & Gas, up 1/8 at 34 1/4; Scott Paper, up 5/8 to 14 5/8, and Farah Manufacturing, off 1 7/8 to 18 3/4.

Among the glamours, ARA Services soared 7 1/2 to 165 1/2. Avon Products was up 3 1/4 to 118 3/4, Johnson & Johnson added 2 at 118 1/2, Automatic Data Processing jumped 3 1/2 to 80 1/2 and Bausch & Lomb moved ahead 2 3/4 to 113, Bargain hunters dominated trading on the American Stock Exchange and the index closed at 27.20, up 0.13.

In the over-the-counter market, trading was light and prices stronger. The NASDAQ index closed at 123.68, up 1.57.

Since 1967 profits of J. H. Vavasseur & Co. Ltd. Have grown consistently. They show a total increase of 2,566% to 31st December 1971. Despite a setback in one subsidiary last year, group profits, earnings and dividends all reached

* Pre-tax profits are up 38%

* Total dividends are raised by an effective 5-5 points to 18%

"Overall results confirm how vigorously the profitable spread of our operations has expanded. There is clearly substantial growth potential within many of the areas in which we operate. The year 1972 should see increased profits from all these activities."

*Earnings per share have increased by 17-6% to 12-50p (after adjusting for the record levels.

BOOKS

FLASH FOR FREEDOM By George MacDonald Fraser. Knopf. 287 pp. $6.95.

THE STEEL BONNETS

By George MacDonald Fraser, Knopf. 395 pp. $8.95. Reviewed by Thomas Lask

Donald Fraser is wearing two hats: a steel bonnet as the chronicler of Anglo-Scottish border history and the plumed hat of the picaresque novelist. He is convincing in both fashions, although I would not equate the order of accomplishment, "Flash for Freedom' is fun, but the other is better entertainment. Its contents are not volatile. It is not the first time that the facts of history turned out to be more magnetic than fiction.

"Flash for Freedom," which was preceded by "Flashman" and "Royal Flash," is the first of the trilogy I have read, but I assume that in form and texture it is the mixture as before: a spicy spoof of the sex and saber novel in which the hero goes from the frying pan into the fire and back again with breathtaking agility. In the process he is never far from willing and nubile females. Some of that heat generated hy his escapades uses a carnal fuel. I will not go so far as to say that Harry Flashman has only one thing on his mind, but I'll wager he'll never be a scholar in anything else.

It is a highly convoluted story, and tricky to get into precis form though the telling is as smooth as custard. Suffice to say that in this third installment of his memoirs, Harry Figshman returns to England from the turbulence of the year 1848 in Europe to find that his wife is about to present him with an heir-an honor that, considering the time he had been out of the country, he had scarcely anticipated. For domestic reasons, therefore, he decides to enter Parliament, but an ill-chosen adventure involving the explosive trio of cards, a beautiful woman and an old enemy ruins that prospect. Fleeing the law, he finds himself, to his horror, aboard a slaver bound for Africa, Flash has no moral scruples about the cargo, only life-saving ones. Transporting slaves is the equal of piracy and he is reluctant to hang. Nevertheless, under the tyrannical eye of a Hollywood variant of Captain Ahab, he helps pick up a shipload of slaves, engages in a skirmish with a group of Amasons in the hope of bringing some back alive and eventually turns up on the American continent in the double, triple, quadruple role of a British navy man and undercover agent, a slave owner, an abolitionist, a slave and finally as a suppliant to the then Congress-. man Abraham Lincoln. Proteus was an inert clod in comparison.

The background and details seem sure and authentic and the turns and twists of the plot are so cunningly contrived that one ver questions their possibilities. My only objection to this colorful happening is Flash himself. ity in these gory pages. He is not my kind of hero. A rogue without sporting sense, moral sense or courage of any kind book reviewer.

IN his current appearance, the just doesn't rate high in my gal British writer George Mac- lery of delights. Even his val lainies seem petty. Flash is ju a weasel in human dress.

"The Steel Bonnets" is work manship of a higher order is a history of the English-Sen tish border, which runs some ? miles across the pinched-in waiof Britain and was, before th accession in 1603 of James v of Scotland as James I of Grea Britain, the locus of a life 5 peculiar to itself as to give the region its own name: Borde country. It was 2 region of clans and tight-knit families, where the least able and the most powerfu lived by thievery and bloodletting and where raids, thefts, burnings kidnappings and killings were a common as plowing, sowing an harvesting were elsewhere. Al though, as Mr. Fraser make clear, it was the border that mad the way of life feasible, the fac is that nationalistic loyalties wer only one strand in the lives o these people and not the mos significant. The English south of the border set themselves up against the Scots north of it an vice versa, but some of the English clans were also arrayed agains other Englishmen. Some of th Scots had English allies; som of the English Scottish allies, An within these alliances there wa such an instability of relation ships owing to long-time enmitte recent hurts, kinship, feuds an whatnot that no side was secur for long. The men were pitiless there was no horror they wer not capable of. Eloodshed we constant and savage and then were times in the century befor 1603 that the area was reduce to a waste land. It was e wo of life that went on for so lon and encompassed so many peop. that in spite of our 20th-centur views, it must have made sens to the people who lived it. Proc of this can be found in the es perience of the men sent out t Scotland and England to kee order in the area-wardens the were called. Hunt said yesterday on the eve of the first round of the WCT finals, "It's not a certainty by any means that Forest Hills will be open" despite a peace agree-ment with the International Lawn Tennis Federation, the ruling amateur body. "I under-stand there are feelings in the ILTF that it (open tennis) should not start until Jan. 1."

The starting date will be settled at the annual meeting of the 26 HATF nations in July, when ratification of the peace agreement will be voted upon.

Runt implied that because of certain jealousies between members, no exemptions to the Jan. 1 date will be permitted. WCT players had been banned from II.TF-sanctioned events this year and the two groups generally have tournament dates that conflict, although WCT did not schedule opposite Forest Hills.

TV Renewal

This circumstance apparently moved a cigarette company Monday to renew its sponsorship of the telecast of the U.S. Open. The company earlier bowed out because of the threatened sbsence of the big names of the WOT troupe. This could still happen if Hunt is correct.

Meanwhile, WCT players also made news yesterday by confirming they have formed a players'

HORSING AROUND-Lucien Laurin is nuzzled by Derby winner Riva Ridge.

Trainer Laurin Gets a Stable Reputation

By Red Smith

LOUISVILLE, My. May 10 (NYT) -A little before the United States got into World War II, a French-Canadian jockey named Lucien Laurin grew tired of fighting weight, claimed a couple of lame horses and set out as a trainer on the smaller race tracks in New England. His stock was so poor he had trouble getting stalls, but he patched the critters up and managed to win

The game was hungrier in those days. When Gallahadion won the 1940 Kentucky Derby, for example, his purse was less than half the $140.-300 that Riva Ridge collected Saturday. Still, Laurin was a little guy, and small purses looked big to him. He kept plowing them back claiming more best-up steeds and nursing them along until he had a etablo that could win 25 or 30 races at a meeting, a remarkshie score on the bush tracks then.

Next he began attending the yearling auctions and investing in new stock. He couldn't afford the fashionably bred colts, but most of the animals ha bought stayed sound and more than a fair share of them grew up to be winners. Two Tests Passed

As a horseman, he had now passed two tests. There are times when one or another of the great stables enjoys such a wealth of top horses that the shop steward at Swift & Co., could win with them, but if you find a man with the tireless patience that can turn a cripple into a race horse and with the discerning eye for quality in a baby, then you have found yourself a horseman.

One point remained to be proved. The late Hirsch Jacobs had started by claiming theap horses, and even in the early years of his reign as America's leading trainer there were some who said, oh, sure, Hirsch had a knack for doctoring sore legs hut he wouldn't know wast to do with a horse of real class. Hirsch's subsequent success with such smashers as Stymie, Palestinian, Exhibitionist, Flag Raiser, Hall to Reason, Bonjour and Reason to Hail didn't keep the knockers from saying the same thing about Laurin, until he met Reginald N. Webster.

Then horses like Quill and Sorceress, Count Amber and Amberoid, all owned by Webster and. trained by Laurin, testified for the defense.

Happy Association The small son of a paper mill hand from provincial Quebec was solidly established when Hull Hancock asked him to take over Claiborne Farm's runners. It was a happy association; although Laurin had left Claiborne in 1970 to operate a public stable, Hancock recommended him to Mrs. John B. Tweedy when she needed a trainer for Meadow Stable. That opening developed unexpectedly. Lucien had stars like Hill Prince, First Landing and Sir Gaylord hefore falling health prompted him to turn Meadow Stable over to his daughter. When Lucien Laurin arrived, he found good ones like Riva Ridge, Upper Case, Quill Gordon and Snanish Riddle in the barn

He didn't even nominate Upper Case for the Derhy, although that one was good enough to win the Florida Derby and the Wood Memorial, and he gave Riva Ridge only three prep races as a 3-year-old—the seven-furlong Hibiscus in Florida March 22, the Everglades at a mile and an eighth 10 days later, and Keeneland's Blue Grass Stakes at 1 1/8 miles 10 days before the

ABA Nets Beat Pacers After Losing Lead of 16

Playoff Final Tied, 1-1

By Thomas Rogers

Even though they fell behind after holding a 16-point lead with 4 minutes 50 seconds left to play, the New York Nets etaggered to a 117-115 victory over the Indiana Pacers last night before an overflow crowd of 10,079 at the Fair-

The unlikely triumph, achieved when Rick Barry hit a 12-foot jump shot to put the Nets back in the lead, 116-115, with 27 seconds remaining, drew the Nets even with the Pacers at one-game each in the four-of-seven-game series for the championship of the American Basketball Association.

Before Barry's shot, the Nets had gone 4 minutes, 23 seconds without a point.

Brown's 3-Point Play The man Carnesecca should have tackled was Roger Brown, who scored 8 of Indiana's points in the rally. His 3-point play on a drive and a foul shot with 1:40 to go lifted the Pacers into the lead, 115-114, rubbing ont a 16-point advantage, 93-77, that the Nets had posted with 1 minute left in the third quarter.

The Nets, after a missed shot by Barry, got another chance when Darnell Hillman of the Pacers was charged with a loose-ball foul with 38 seconds re-

The Nets then worked the hall again to Barry, to the right of the hoop, and New York's leading scorer (with 29 points) put the Nets hack into the lead with 27 seconds to go.

Freddie Lewis of Indiana then missed and on the play Mel Daniels was called for an offensive foul. Brown fouled Barry intentionally after the Nets passed the ball inbounds and Barry ended the scoring by making one of three free tosses 3 seconds from

The New York victory, which sends the Nets back home even with the Pacers and in possession of the home-court advantage, was

Relaxed Code On Amateurs Is Proposed

ANN ARBOR, Mich., May 10 (UPI).-The chairman of the U.S. Olympic Committee's (USOC) eligibility committee wants to see a radically relaxed definition of amateurism so athletes may compete in the Olympics while earning money from endorsements and television

Marcus Plant, chairman of the committee, said: "It's a suggestion for a radical change by the International Olympic Committee (IOC). It's a recognition of reality." The committee's restructuring of the concept of amateurism, made public yesterday, was presented to the USOC on April 17. The strict concept of amateurism in the 20th century has eroded," Plant said. "I think, in principle, it (the proposed definition) has the backing of the USOC board of directors."

Under the less-strict concept of what constitutes an amateur. which has not been adopted by the USOC, an athlete could: • Remain an amateur in one sport despite being a professional or non-amateur in another. • Lose his amateur status and then regain it under certain con-

Ocach or teach a sport in which he competes but still re-tain amateur status if that position is not his primary vocation. • Accept remuneration such as television fees and endorsement monies provided they don't invoive any performance. Accept reimbursement for participation expenses, take out accident or liness insurance for training or competition, accept prizes for competing if allowed published writings, and accept a college scholarship. • Accept reimbursement for of income hecause he had to take off work to train or com-

• Retain his amateur standing and still sign a professional contract in his sport, provided he takes no money or material consideration for signing. Plant is a University of Michigan law professor who served as president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association in

A humor columnist said, "It's worse when you're trying to write something funny about him, Has anyone managed to write anything funny about McGovern?"

There was dead silence in the room, "How can you write something funny about a man who comes from South Dakota?" a writer asked defensively.

Repairing the Bridge At Avignon

By William A. Krauss

A VIGNON, France (IHT).—The possibility looms this week that the city of the popes on the banks of the Rhone may lose a monument and gain a transportation facility.

"What good's a broken bridge?" asked Jean-Paul Reynaud, painter, poet, and Provençal import-export tycoon, at a press conference the other day in the Place de l'Horloge. I refer, of course, to the Pont Saint-Bénézet, which has hung in ruins half-spanning the Rhone for more years than anybody around here cares to remember.

"If I have my way," Mr. Reynaud said, "aud if the progressive and intelligent people of this forward-looking community will support the cause and sign the petition I'm preparing, then we'll get the bridge fixed. If the Rue de la Republique had a 10-foot hole in it, would the city act? You can bet your bouillabaisse. If the roof blew off the city hall, would the mayor take steps? Instantly! So in very simple terms I ask, if a bridge is broken, should not a bridge be

Mr. Reynaud, who divides his time between Avignon and Marseilles, has for 20 years been an activist in artistic circles throughout Provence. His appeal this week launched a campaign for signatures on a petition to present to authorities in the department of Vaucluse suggesting and requesting—indeed, demanding—government action to repair the bridge at Avignon.

Nobody Danced

"Sur le pont d'Arignon l'on y danse, l'on y danse-l'on y danse tous en rond," Mr. Reynaud hummed and then grimaced. "What nonsense, eh? Every child in France grows up with this ditty in his ears, yet it's so patently ridiculous. Nobody ever danced en rond on the bridge—that is to say. round and round in a circle. You know why? It's too narrow. that's why. The bridge was built to accommodate packhorse traffic with not enough room for mice to dance en rond.

"You know what really happened?" Mr. Reynaud went "Go look again at the broken bridge. On its way across the river to Villeneuve-les-Avignon, the bridge straddled the tip of the little island we call La Berthelasse. From earliest days this cozy islet was a heppy picnic spot for alert citizens of the town. They spread their tablecloths on the grass and ate fried river-fish and drank up quite a substantial lot of Côtes du Rhone red, white and rosé, like sensible people. And after that they danced."

Pregnant pause. "Where did they dance?" Mr. Reynaud answered his own

"Sous le pont d'Avignon, that's where they danced. Under the bridge, not on it, sous not sur. Under the bridge in the shade of the arches. In my opinion, while we're getting the bridge repaired we might also see to it that the song is returned to what must have been its original and accurate phrasing."

1669 Crisis

People around Avignon may hold differing views about the original words of the song, but there's no disputing the antiquity of the Pont Saint-Benezet, built between 1177 and 1185, very roughly the same dates as the choir of Notre Dame in Paris. In the 13th century part of the bridge tumbled into the river but was speedily restored. In the very early 17th century repeated violent floods weakened the structure and one arch fell. But the terminal crisis occurred in 1669, when half the bridge toppled-and for 303 years it's been out of "Which I find frankly inexcusable," Mr. Reynaud declared. "Please understand that I am warmly in favor of architectural treasures and ancient monuments. I am a man who dearly loves a ruin. I say to leave a ruined castle ruined is okay, we have lots of lovely ruined castles, let them lie. But not a ruined transportation facility.

"I used only remind you." he said, "that this year is 1972, in the age of space travel and of motoring ou the moon. I believe that to get from one place to another place is vastly more important to harried humanity than is any picturepostcard souvenir of the romantic past.

"My point," Mr. Reynaud elaborated, "is that half a bridge is distinctly not better than no bridge. My message is that half a bridge is no bridge at all. I want to see the other half supplied and the whole structure widened to accommodate people, dogs, bicycles, eutomobiles, and Belgian tourist buses.

"Then the merry townsfolk could even dance en rond on festive days," Mr. Reynaud concluded. "As taxpayers, they deserve to dance. As citizens, they have waited 303 years for the government to act. If that's not patience, what would you call it?"

The Harvard Club, the last of New York City's traditional allmale Ivy League university clubs, has voted to remain that way after 107 years of male exclusivity, reports David A. Andelman of The New York Times. The victory for tradition, however, was narrow, with 1,654 members in favor of admitting women as full members and 854 against, just 18 votes shy of the two-thirds needed to amend the bylaws. The vote, relegating women visitors to a separate entrance, a separate bar and a separate dining room except for special occasions, was taken in the face of dwindling membership and rising costs which might have been offset by the graduates of Harvard.
